Edison's Funeral His Industry Was There His Songs, His Friends

By Arthur Brisbane

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 21—Thomas A. Edison lay in his coffin here this afternoon in his old fashioned house, with tall, pale green fern palms and innumerable flowers about him.

Sunlight streamed through many windows of rooms opening one into the other. In each were gathered intimate friends and relatives of Edison, old employes and those connected with him in the electrical industry.

In one room, opening into that in which lay the large brown coffin, sat several that had known Edison for many years, some for half a century and more.

Samuel Insull of Chicago, one of the world's greatest distributors of electric power, was there with his wife.

Near him sat Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Co., and Gerard Swope, president of General Electric, and his wife. Charles M. Schwab was in the same room.

More than 50 years ago, Insull, a youth in London, bought a little book about Edison at one of the Smith newsstands, determined to know him, came to America and became Edison's private secretary.

Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope are the world's greatest manufacturers of the incandescent light bulbs that Edison created. How many scores of millions of such bulbs they have made they do not know.

Matthew Sloan, head of New York's Edison Co., said that too much emphasis is put on Edison's invention of the incandescent light; great as that is, his creation of central power plants is greater. Henry Ford was there with his wife. They had come from Detroit and with them Edsel Ford, their son.

Henry Ford had bidden farewell to his friend, both knowing they would never meet again on this earth, two weeks before Edison died. And Ford refused to look upon Edison dead, saying, "I want to remember him alive with all his power."

Each man was proud of Edison's friendship or acquaintance and determined to make the honor known.

Ford, for years, has been Edison's friend, in the truest sense, devoted, helpful in many ways, of which the public knows nothing.

Those that admire Edison may be grateful to Ford for all that he has done to free Edison's last years from worry.

Harvey Firestone was there, with his sons. He and Ford were Edison's two most intimate friends, in the later years.

President Hoover had planned to be present, but work in connection with the arrival of Laval and others from abroad made it impossible at the last moment.

Edison would have approved the President's absence. He would have said to Herbert Hoover, who has known him for many years, "That's right. Attend first to the business for which the public elected you."

But the President did not send to represent him any mere official substitute. Mrs. Hoover came from Washington to the funeral and saw Mrs. Edison, and tried to comfort her.

There was a brief delay in beginning the simple service, and that, years ago, would have annoyed Edison, to whose active mind, time was everything. But there is no hurry now, within that heavy box, with so many flowers around it.

Old men that have worked with him and for him discuss the old days, in whispers. It was in 1873 that Edison became known all over the world, for his inventions in connection with telegraphy. And about five years later, the Western Union paid him one hundred thousand dollars for one telegraphic discovery.

That was much money at that time, but all of it went to scientific experiment. Edison living, literally, for his work, could conceive of no interest in money, outside of it.

Samuel Insull recalls that it was in 1877 and 1878 that stock in gas companies dropped violently, all over the world. Finance had heard of Edison's electric light. But one good thing never hurts another. The world's gas companies are worth today ten times what they were worth when Edison enclosed a little filament, to resist the passage of the electric current, and become incandescent by that resistance within a glass bulb. Resistance has been a blessing to the world, supplying electric light through Edison's genius, and the light of liberty, through the resistance of courageous men.

Insull said, "Everybody who is anything in the electrical industry is here." Everybody was there, owners of great private fortunes, managers of light,

LYNN SCHOOL FIRE IS SET BY PUPIL

Quick Action Averts a Serious Blaze; 800 Students Unaware of the Peril

A deliberate attempt to set fire to the Lynn Classical high school while 800 pupils were attending their classes, was discovered just in time today and a serious blaze prevented.

According to Custodian of Public Buildings Edward F. Hidley and George E. Marsh, janitor of the school, a match was thrown into a paper-filled locker by a student.

The blaze was discovered by the janitor, who is 74, and several boy pupils who were passing. The latter ran into the gymnasium and summoned Athletic Coach John Cody and some of his pupils, who extinguished the blaze before it had attained headway.

Although the basement was filled with smoke, pupils upstairs were unaware of the blaze, and continued their studies.

The locker in which the match was thrown was unused at the time, and was partly filled with old papers and a few books.

An investigation of the fire was started by police and fire authorities.

SIX BROKERS INDICTED IN CLOSING

All Accused of Conspiracy in Sale of Medford Trust Company's Stock

Six Boston brokers, including Herbert S. Mabey, son-in-law of Judge James H. Sisk of Superior Court, were named today in two indictments charging conspiracy to steal and defraud in connection with the sale of stock in the recently closed Medford Trust Company.

HELD IN $3000 BAIL.

His home is in Grant ave., Newton Center. He is listed as treasurer of the General Management Corp. of Newbury st., treasurer of the Colonial Mortgage Corp., and of the Federal Mortgage & Loan Corp., and director of H. F. Staples & Co., Inc.

He is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, '08, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Q. Mabey of Newton. He married Mary L. Sisk in 1920.

He was arraigned before Judge Gibbs, pleaded not guilty to the conspiracy charges and furnished bail of $3000, recommended by Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred A. Crafts.

PLANE AIDS HUNT FOR 'HUNGRY KILLER'

Fifty State Troopers, With Orders to Shoot Bandit, Join Posse; Victim Is Dying

Framingham, Oct. 22—Fifty state troopers, an airplane and a posse of police and hunters with bird dogs joined this afternoon in a search of a vast wooded area for the burglar who last night shot, and probably fatally wounded, Patrolman John L. Regan.

A man believed to be the fugitive, carrying a revolver, was sighted this morning near the ruins of the old Greenwood estate, a mile and a half from the scene of the shooting.

ALL AUTOS SEARCHED

County Commissioner Bowditch, who saw him, notified authorities and state troopers were speedily mobilized from barracks at Petersham, Holden, Grafton, Rehoboth, Freetown, Lunenburg and as distant as Middleboro and Brookfield.

All highways in the vicinity were patrolled and cars were stopped and searched.

An old pump-house on the Greenwood estate, destroyed by fire many years ago, gave evidence of recent occupation. In an underground room, reached by removing floor boards, troopers found food and a table.

Police believe the patrolman's assailant is a desperate man who has been living for some time in the woods near the home of Wallace Adams, in Winch st., where he was surprised last night at a stolen meal.

During the progress of the manhunt, Regan, 31, the father of three children, was reported dying at Framingham Union Hospital following an emergency operation by Dr. Dennis W. Heffernan, who removed two of five bullets that felled him.

The plane assumed direction of the search shortly before noon. It was piloted by Charles F. Cowan, manager of the Framingham Flying Service.

It was flown over the woods at an altitude of 150 feet and Cowan communicated with the posse by means of prearranged signals to Robert Codman, another flier, who accompanied the police.

The posse was a strangely assorted group composed of State

SISTERS SHARE STRATTON WILL

William H. Phillips of Long Beach, Cal., half-brother of Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, is bequeathed nothing in the will of the former Technology chairman, which was filed in the Suffolk registry of probate today.

A third of Dr. Stratton's large estate, the extent of which is not given, is bequeathed to a friend, Morris Parris of Washington, and the remaining two-thirds to the educator's three sisters, Mrs. Lucy Hobbs of Chicago, Mrs. Olive Newcomb and Miss Matie E. Stratton, both of Pasadena, Cal.

Although Phillips is named in the will with the sisters as next-of-kin, there is no bequest to him.

Parris and Mrs. Newcomb are named executors. The will, drawn on July 2, 1930, does not disclose the size of the estate.

Dr. Stratton's household and personal effects at his Beacon st. house, including many valuable antiques, are divided among Parris and the sisters in special bequests.

Cars Kill 2 Everett Children in 12 Hours

Two automobile accidents in one street within 12 hours snuffed out the lives of two Everett children.

William Seaward, 3, of 54 Myrtle st., Everett, ran into the street in front of his home and was struck by a truck which, police say is owned by the National Ice Cream Co of East Boston. At the Whitten Memorial Hospital he was pronounced dead.

Catherine LeBlanc, 5, of Tremont st., was killed there late yesterday.

Laval Acclaimed, Sees Success for Visit

Pictures on Pages 2 and 7

New York, Oct. 22—Premier Pierre Laval, who worked from the driver's seat of a hack to the helm of France, arrived today to talk with President Hoover about methods of smoothing wrinkles of care from the face of mankind. New York gave him a tumultuous reception.

Thousands of cheering persons banked Battery Park, fireboats spouted and the big guns of Fort Jay thundered.

The former peasant lad smiled calmly through it all, watched huge airplanes zooming overhead and faced a great crowd of photographers and reporters with aplomb.

"Let me see the Statue of Liberty," he said in the midst of it all, then he craned his neck out a window of the municipal tug Macom, which with pennants streaming was about to land him on American soil.

Lower Broadway was aflutter with French and American flags and every window of the high buildings was crowded with office workers.

"Ah—beautiful!" he said.

At the City Hall, where he was escorted with the thrilling pomp New York stages for its heroes, he was welcomed by Secretary of

TRUNK 'DEATH PARTY' PROBED

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 22—Officers probing a gay party at the home of Winnie Ruth Judd the night of October 16 today reasserted that jealousy over a man, or men, caused her to slay her former friends, Agnes Leroi, nurse, and Hedwig Samuelson, school teacher.

The scene of the murders the following night has been definitely fixed as the apartment of the victims. The slayer later shipped the bodies of the two victims to Los Angeles in two trunks.

Police said references in Miss Samuelson's diary which might be construed as indicating existence of a strange intimacy among the three women were not conclusive. The diary is in possession of County Attorney Lloyd Andrews in Los Angeles.

A thick file of letters, all liberally sprinkled with references to noted persons, came to light in the case today.

The letters evidently were exchanged between all three women and numerous friends widely scattered in the United States.

One letter referred to John Barrymore, noted screen and stage actor and his wife, Dolores Costello, on whose yacht Miss Samuelson was invited to make a cruise.

SALES TAX COUNTED TO LIFT U. S. OUT OF 'RED'

CONGRESS MAY BE ASKED TO FAVOR PLAN

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The government is considering a plan of a selective sales tax as means of raising money to counter-balance its declining income.

While no decision has been made as to whether it would be recommended to Congress, experts are carefully combing the field to see what articles could be included.

NECESSARIES ESCAPE

It has been definitely decided that no tax be placed upon articles of food, rent, fuel or other necessaries.

Matches, automobiles, radios and perhaps cigarettes were considered as logical sources for bringing in additional revenue.

Taxes on such articles, officials believe, would largely be absorbed by the manufacturer, and not affect the purchaser.

Automobiles formerly were taxed, but the tax was eliminated in the 1926 revenue act over the opposition of Secretary Mellon.

Experts in going over the field have looked at the automobile tax from the standpoint that automobiles use the roads constructed by the government and the states without paying any tax except a nominal license fee and a gasoline tax, and in some states an excise tax.

The experts believe any attempt by Congress to revive the sales tax on automobiles would invite opposition from all parts of the country and probably result in defeat of such a tax.

They consider that railroad, on the other hand, were taxed, and that a tax on automobiles would furnish a logical basis for raising more revenue.

DEFICIT PASSES BILLION

That the government must raise more revenue has been conceded by officials since the 1931 fiscal year concluded with a deficit of $903,000,000, and three and a half months of the present fiscal year have produced a deficit of $617,575,720.

In the last fiscal year there was a drop of $350,000,000 in income tax, and in the present fiscal year there already has been a decline of $247,000,000 in income tax collections.

While the government faces the necessity of raising more money, it does not contemplate raising enough through any tax increase that may be decided upon to balance the budget immediately, considering that when business revives the necessity of raising the amount needed to cover the expenditures of these two years would be removed automatically.

Cambridge Slayer Jailed for 10 Years

A sentence of 10 to 15 years in State prison was imposed in Middlesex Superior Court today on Vito M. Zarrilli, 42, of Donnell ave., Cambridge, when he pleaded guilty to manslaughter in connection with the killing of J. L. Lancelotta of Arlington on Aug. 31.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Volpe told the court that Zarilli fired a shotgun at Lancelotta and another youth under the impression they were in a group of young men who had annoyed him earlier in the evening.

THEATERS SHOW 1ST TELEVISION

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Two theaters were linked together today in Broadway's initial demonstration of television on a ten-foot screen.

In the lobby of the Guild theater was the transmitting equipment of U. A. Sanabria, Chicago engineer, while connected to it by a wire 500 feet long and temporarily stretched over intervening buildings, was the large screen on the stage of the Broadway theater.

An invited audience watched as images unfolded themselves as Carveth Wells, explorer and master of ceremonies, a singer or two, an actor and actress and a parrot from Africa.

himself up. He also pleaded not guilty, but bail in his case was set at $1,000, which was furnished by his wife, Riella.

Crafts told Judge Gibbs he expected the other four indicted would be arraigned later in the day.

The Middlesex County grand jury, which has been investigating the sale of stock in the closed Medford bank for a week, returned two secret indictments in which each of the six was named.

One charges Mabey and five others with conspiring between Dec. 1, 1929, and Oct. 20 last to steal the property of various persons. The other accuses them of conspiring during the same period to defraud members of the general public.

Mabey, at the time of his marriage to Judge Sisk's daughter, was in business in Chicago.

Dichter's registration as a stock salesman was cancelled on Aug. 1, 1930, by Director John C. Hull of the state division of securities, with the announcement:

"This man became a star actor in a scheme to sell to gullible people stock of a certain trust company at a price far above its fair value. His particular specialty was credulous women."

The Medford Trust Company was the bank referred to. The credulous women, it was said, went automobile riding with him and then trusted their finances to him. He was associated with 12 brokerage houses in six years as a "high-powered" salesman and one of them paid him $10,000 commission in a month.

Dichter appealed cancellation of his registration but the full board of the state division of securities confirmed Hull's action. Last June Dichter sought to have the case reopened but his petition was denied.

COURT HONORS HERO OFFICERS

A public tribute was paid in Middlesex Superior Court today to two officers who yesterday disarmed Mrs. Grace A. Buchanan, 35, of Tileston st., Everett, when she drew a gun in court and allegedly tried to shoot Police Chief William F. Hill of Everett.

The court officers, Charles S. Robinson and Edwin J. Grant, were lauded by Judge John M. Gibbs and Asst. Dist. Atty. Paul R. Foley.

Mrs. Buchanan had been found guilty by a jury of a charge of assault and battery on an Everett policeman and was awaiting disposition of her case.

"A great disaster might have happened," said Judge Gibbs, "only for the action of these court officers. They prevented a dire calamity. We have no medals to give them, but it is only fitting we should pay this slight public tribute."

Additional charges against Mrs. Buchanan were held up pending her commitment to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

'Come After Your Cash' Says Chicago Bank to Depositors

Chicago, Oct. 22 (INS)—For the second time in Chicago's financial history a bank today invited its depositors to withdraw their money.

"Come and get your money. We are quitting," was the burden of a circular letter sent to the 3500 depositors of the institution, the Safety State Bank.

MANY TEACHERS IN DIRE WANT

Chicago, Oct. 22 (INS)—Chicago's 14,000 school teachers have not received a cent of cash salary since last April.

They have been given "scrip," but it is not accepted by the banks and a very few merchants are willing to take it in exchange for food and clothing.

The families of thousands of teachers, their meager savings exhausted, are in dire poverty.

But in spite of these facts, the tutors of Chicago's future citizens will not go on a strike, Miss Mary M. Abbe, president of the Chicago Teachers' Federation, said today.

"No matter how bad conditions get," she said, "we cannot walk out and leave the children without the educational facilities they deserve. We will fight to the last ditch to get our pay, but we can never hold a threat like that over the heads of the authorities."

3 DEAD, 12 HURT IN CRASHES

Three persons are dead and 13 suffering from injuries as results of auto accidents in Greater Boston and Massachusetts early today and last night.

Catherine LeBlanc, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leander J. LeBlanc of Tremont st., Everett, was killed when struck by an auto operated by Mrs. Edwin F. Mason of Bellingham ave., Everett, who police say was learning to drive.

A collision at Prospect st. and Upland rd., Norwood, caused the death of Edward J. Riley, 17, of Vaughan st., Readville. His brother Martin, 14, and Louis Constrantino, 15, of Norton st., Readville, were taken to Norwood Hospital. Mrs. Josephine Dillon of Ellis ave., Norwood, who police said was driving the other car, and her husband, Martin, also were injured.

THREE TRUCKS CRASH

In Springfield three truck drivers were injured, two of them critically, in a triple crash of their machines in Boston road, early today, when one truck overturned and another burst into flames.

The injured were taken to Wesson Memorial Hospital where the names of Clifford Marshall, 23, of Wallingford, Ct., and Harry Letney, 42, of 2 Hayden ter., Roxbury, were placed on the danger list. The third injured truck driver was Fred G. Pierce of 62 Hall ave., Somerville.

Seven persons were taken to Fall River hospitals as a result of three auto accidents in that city and Somerset last night. Vincenzo D'Cesore, 49, of Franklin rd., Somerset, died of a skull fracture received in a head-on collision with a car driven by Samuel J. Soulier of 210 Grove st., Fall River, near Somerset.

FALL RIVER VICTIM

The others injured were Mrs. Philemon E. Truesdale, wife of the head of Truesdale Hospital; John M Sylvia, of 36 Short st.; W. and and Anthony Gzarro, of 83 Varley st., William Sullivan, 37 O'Grady st., and Joseph Souza, 270 Tower st., all Fall River. In the Sylvia machine were the two Gzarros, D'Cesore and two others. Mrs. Truesdale was in the Soulier car.

Sullivan was injured in Fall River when he apparently walked in front of the car of George Suprenant of 181 Hunter st., that city.

RAILWAY CHIEFS HIT POOL PLAN AS ILLEGAL

Idea of Dividing Profits Made on Stockholders' Capital Is Seen as Dangerous Practice

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 22 (AP)—Sentiment that the railroads will adopt the Interstate Commerce Commission's plan to pool earnings for the benefit of weaker roads if present difficulties can be surmounted developed at the annual fall meeting of the Association of Railway Executives today.

The Commission has granted an increase of some rates dependent on the willingness of the roads to divide the resultant revenues, estimated at $125,000,000, with needy competitors.

Rail chiefs here, disappointed at the rejection of their proposal for a flat 15 per cent rise, doubt the legality of the pool idea.

"What," one asked, "would I say to our stockholders if we turned these increased revenues over to another road? It certainly is not impossible that the stockholders might stop such a transfer in the courts, since the earnings were made on their capital."

The advisory commission of the association met today to lay out the agenda. The pool plan, coming suddenly, apparently had displaced in interest other subjects, thought there is considerable agitation for decisive action against waterways and buses, at present not regulated so extensively as the railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

While no bankers were seen at the meeting today, financial opinion is given an important place. Railroads, it was pointed out, need more loans for expansion and maintenance, virtually impossible to get in the present difficult situation.

One bank feels that all the increased revenue resulting from the freight increases would not be needed for that weak roads, that about $65,000,000 could be turned into the larger treasuries.

DEASY EXPECTS BIG BUSINESS FROM N. E.

Penn. R. R. Official Predicts a Phenomenal Boom When Good Times Return

"The sturdy way in which New England is standing up under the depression can only mean phenomenal activity when prosperity returns."

This prediction was made today at the 16th annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts at the Copley-Plaza Hotel by John F. Deasy, vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

"We expect great things from New England in the years ahead of us," he said.

"I think I am correct in saying that the industrial and financial situation in New England is generally acknowledged to be better than in any other section of the country.

"For example only last week when news of the chartering of the $500,000,000 National Credit Corporation suggested by President Hoover, was broadcast through the press, the information included the comment that the financial institutions of New England would probably not have to draw upon its resources.

"During the past summer car loadings for all railroads decreased, including those for the Pennsylvania railroad, yet we actually interchanged with the New England lines during those difficult months more cars than in the same period of 1930."

Railroads and trucks must not enter into ruinous competition with each other, to the detriment of America, but must develop together, he said.

Savings bank life insurance is more economical than insurance in private companies and its advantages should be impressed on wage-earners, B. Preston Clark, vice-president of the Plymouth Cordage Co., said in another address.

He said that workers pay for industrial life insurance an amount equal to 6½ per cent of all wages paid in the state, of which 3 per cent is wasted, the wage-earners buying the most expensive instead of the cheapest kind of insurance.

power and electrical manufacturing organizations, with values totalling many billions, and all born of that brain, so quiet in the coffin. As he lies there, eight hundred thousand men and women are on payrolls created by his genius, drawing in pay one thousand million dollars a year, every dollar paid by him.

No need of a monument, for such a man, but he should have one, a monument at Niagara, as tall as the precipice, with his own light shining upon it, forever, and gratitude in every American heart.

It was a simple funeral service, that Edison would have liked, and the music, that only his ears could not hear, would have pleased him. There was classical music, by Beethoven and by Wagner, including the magnificent "Evening Star" song from Tannhauser, played by violin and piano.

Two other musicians, with old-fashioned organ and a violin, played Edison's favorites, "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen" and "The Little Gray House in the West."

Arthur L. Walsh, who played those songs, once made a violin record for Edison, 17 years ago, to be recorded on Edison's phonograph. Then Edison made Walsh vice-president of his companies. He said, "A man who can do one thing well, can do other things well."

The house is not big, those that brought from Mrs. Edison a request to attend were alone admitted, and all space available was filled. Thousands that gathered without, and stood reverently, should know, that to admit them would have been impossible.

During the musical service which lasted half an hour, the old men, white, bent, and tired, and the women with wrinkled cheeks, looked down, in sorrow as they listened. The young, of whom a few were present, lifted their eyes and looked far away. Their time is distant.

Walsh, who played the favorite songs of his benefactor, with so much feeling, was reminded of the Arab who looked upon the tomb of Mohammed, at Mecca, and then put out both his eyes, that they might never behold anything less worthy.

It was suggested that the violin should never again be played. Henry Ford, who collects violins, would like to have it for his Edison museum. But Edison would have said to Walsh, "Nonsense, make it as useful as you can."

When the music ceased, two men stood in a doorway near the coffin, dressed in long, dark robes, the Rev. Stephen J. Herben and Lewis Perry, headmaster of Exeter, much liked by Edison, for his help in selecting promising students.

The clergymen read words that are the most beautiful ever written, and that have comforted millions. "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me shall not perish." "In my father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you."

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures."

"Thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me."

"There is one glory of the sun and another glory the moon, one star differeth from another."

The headmaster of Exeter, in a brief, excellent address, praised the headmaster of electricity. A brief eulogy written by Edison's old friend, Arthur J. Palmer, was read. Then came the final prayer, all present at the last repeating the Lord's Prayer. Then the announcement, "the interment will be at the convenience of the family," and the services were ended.

All left the house that Edison had left days before. How strange to think that he would never see it again, every inch of it so familiar, never again use the steps that his feet counted automatically as he started to his work, often at 5 in the morning.

In days of ancient heroism, many warriors died voluntarily, to accompany their chief on his last journey.

How wonderful to travel with Edison, if any were worthy of the honor, on his mysterious journey to that far country on which his thoughts dwelt when he said in deep sleep, "It is very beautiful over there."

You can imagine the powers of nature recognizing and making way for his spirit on its journey through infinite space.

It is worth while to work for others.

Three Film Actresses Face Court Battles

Beverly Hills, Calif., Oct. 22—Lois Wilson, May McAvoy, and Mary Nolan, film actresses, are all having legal difficulties, it was revealed in the court of Judge H. E. Billings yesterday.

Lois Wilson

Miss McAvoy is named in a suit filed by a Beverly Hills bank, alleging she failed to repay a $215 loan.

John Lancaster, booking agent, sued Miss Wilson for $605, assertedly due for services.

Ralph Modjeski May Be Facing Prison

Reno, Nev., Oct. 22 (AP)—Legal complications have resulted from the failure of Ralph Modjeski, bridge builder, to claim Reno as his home in obtaining a license to wed Mrs. Mary T. Giblyn here last July 7.

Ralph Modjeski

The marriage license application said his residence was New York. Modjeski had obtained a divorce decree the day before, after testifying he was a resident of Reno.

Now District Judge B. F. Curler has before him two briefs, one recommending that Modjeski's divorce be set aside and that he be prosecuted for perjury, and the other pointing out that Modjeski may have changed his residence plans overnight.

Adele Astaire to Wed Lord and Live in Ireland

London, Oct. 22 (INS)—In a radio-telephone interview with the London Evening Standard, Adele Astaire, internationally famous dancer and musical comedy star, today admitted she is shortly to be married to Lord Charles Cavendish, youngest son of the Duke of Devonshire.

Adele Astaire

The marriage, she said, will take place early in the new year, Miss Astaire told the newspaper she planned to give up her stage career and live with her future husband at his estate in Ireland.

2 Held Without Bail in Kiley's Murder

Charged with the murder of James M. Kiley, Somerville filling station proprietor, on April 9, James F. Garrick of Boston and Edward Consalvi of Somerville were arraigned in Middlesex Superior court today.

They pleaded not guilty and were held without bail. Two others whose names were withheld were also indicted for the crime, the second filling station slaying in Somerville in two months. Three youths have been sent to State Prison for life for the killing of the first victim, Evangelista L. Bagley, in Mystic ave.

BARON MUMM'S END BEGAN IN WORLD WAR

Came to America and Tried Again; Landed Cheap Job in Broker's House

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—The romantic career of Baron Walter Von Mumm, as sparkling with excitement as the champagne that still bears his family name, seemed to be approaching a drab end today.

The baron is in a hospital near death from a bullet wound, self-inflicted yesterday. His only explanation was in a brief note he wrote before firing the bullet through his chest at the Glen Head, L. I., estate of a wealthy friend. It read:

"I am doing this because I no longer wish to live."

From a spectacular sportsman whose vast vineyards produced the champagne with which many a famous toast was made, Baron Von Mumm had descended after a series of reverses to the position of a little known customer's man in a New York brokerage house.

The baron has been living in a rooming house. He is 49. When he was 20 years old, he left his home in Germany, changed his name to Walter De Munn, and moved to France.

The baron was married to Miss Frances Scoville, daughter of a Seneca (Kan.) banker, in 1913.

When war descended on Europe his vast vineyards and entire estate were confiscated by the French government. He and his wife were separated. A special act of Congress returned her American citizenship to her and she lived in Paris until her death in 1920.

DEATH ENDS QUEST FOR 'THRILLS'

Here is another newly published photo believed to be that of Hedwig Samuelson, school teacher victim in Phoenix, Ariz., death mystery. It was found in trunk with portions of her hacked body. Both women victims of the crime were friends of the woman now hunted as the slayer. (I. N. R. Photos.)

CAPONE WEALTH TO BE SEIZED

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—Authorization from Washington, D. C., expected today, only was needed to set government tax collectors busy seizing the property of Al Capone.

Robert E. Neely, acting collector of internal revenue, announced that the gang chief's property from what real estate he may possess to his $135 suits, may be seized, after tax liens are obtained, for overdue incom taxs.

Capone is to be sentenced tomorrow for income tax law violations, of which he was convicted by a federal court jury. A maximum sentence of 17 years' imprisonment and $50,000 in fines is possible. The tax liability charged in the criminal action was only $215,000, but the government is expected to seek collection of about $500,000.

CRATER 'BONES CLUE' FAILS

Madison, Me., Oct. 22—Another "clue" in the hunt for Judge Joseph Force Crater, missing New York justice, collapsed here today when it was definitely established that a skeleton found at Stark was not that of the New York man.

Similarity in the build of the skeleton and the description of the missing judge led Sheriff Elton Markham to communicate with New York police.

HOOVER TOLD TO FIRE 'GOSSIPS'

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Charging that certain officials in the Navy Department have started "propaganda" against reductions of the naval budget, Representative Wood, Indiana, today recommended to President Hoover that these men be found out and released from the service.

Wood asserted minor officials in the Navy Department had resorted to "cheap naval politics" in starting rumors that reduction in the naval budget would be brought about by laying up the Constitution, abolishing the Navy band, closing the Boston Navy Yard and other like steps.

Wood was chairman of the appropriations committee in the last Congress and will be in the next if the Republicans organize the House.

Wood said President Hoover had indicated he would like to find out who was responsible for some of the reports coming out of the Navy Department.

Jury Returns $5000 Verdict, to Learn Lawyer Is Dead

Unaware of the death of a lawyer they heard plead yesterday, a jury returned a $5000 verdict for him today in Suffolk court.

The attorney, John F. Ryan of Boston and Newton, died last night at Cambridge Hospital from appendicitis. He closed his argument a few hours before in the suit of Edward and Alice Fleming of Keene, N. H., to recover from the estate of Russell J. Eastman of Boston for the death of their son, Joseph, in an auto accident on September 11, 1927.

JUNIOR LEAGUE 20-1 ANTI-DRY

Members of the Junior League in Boston were pleased today over the almost unanimous vote in favor of modification of the prohibition amendment in a national postcard poll of the society organization. The vote was 20 to 1 in favor of modification, it was announced in New York.

"Personally I think it's great," said Miss Harriet F. White of Gloucester st., Back Bay, publicity chairman of the Boston branch of the league.

"The members of the organization with whom I have spoken today were favorably impressed by the vote. We received postcards in August to signify our preferences.

"I telegraphed the New York headquarters of the league today in an effort to ascertain just how Boston members voted."

FATHER KILLED, SON HUNTED

Cabot, Vt., Oct. 22 (AP)—Horace Achilles, 70, was found shot to death in his wayside stand on the South Cabot road today. He was shot through the head and a 22-caliber rifle was beside his body. Although the death had all the appearances of a suicide, state authorities were asked to investigate.

A selectman refused to permit the removal of the body until doctors of the state board of health had viewed it. State's Attorney C. O. Granai and Sheriff Henry C. Lawson were summoned from Montpelier. They sought Ernest Achilles, the dead man's son, to aid them, but were unable to locate him.

Calvin Coolidge Is Now Bossing and Shooting

New timbers have been placed under the barn, new doors or windows placed where needed and the house and barn painted. About 15 men are now busy spreading lime over the pastures.

Mr. Coolidge strolls about the farm every morning, keeping touch with the repair work, and then takes his gun and goes into the woods. Three partridges have dropped from shots from Mr. Coolidge's gun and Plymouth has one less hedgehog.

CAB WRECKED IN DOCK BATTLE

A taxicab was overturned and its driver menaced by more than 40 men in Charlestown today in what police said was another outbreak of the longshoremen's strike.

The cab had just emerged from Hoosac Docks, Water st., after delivering some passengers that the men construed as strike breakers.

It was followed through Water st., to Chelsea st. and had halted traffic when the group shouldered it onto its side.

The driver fled from the threats of the crowd but returned and claimed his cab after police arrived.

Counter proposals to demands of striking longshoremen were prepared today by a committee of steamship operators, as the second day of peace negotiations got under way.

The operators met with Chairman John N. Levins at 40 Broad st. to frame proposals in writing before presenting them to union leaders.

They included wage agreements for Sundays and other overtime work, already reached verbally.

The knotty question of the sling load still remains, the men demanding a maximum weight limit of 1500 pounds and the operators asking an unlimited weight.

2 Firemen Cited for Working on Day Off

Two officers were commended today in fire department orders for responding to alarms on their day off Oct. 13.

Capt. Allen J. Jarvis of Ladder 10 was cited for helping fight a fire at Montvale st., West Roxbury, and Lieut. John F. Haley of Engine 20 for working at a blaze on Neponset ave., Dorchester.

THREE HELD IN $50,000 RAID

Seizure of $50,000 worth of liquor in a barn of the Glades Club near the estate of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams at Scituate, October 5, was described before U. S. Commissioner Jenney in Federal court today.

Three defendants charged with storing the liquor were each held in $2500 for the grand jury. They are Louis A. Gordon, Ivy st., Back Bay; Samuel Swartz, Walkhill st., Mattapan, and Louis S. Cohen, Esmond st., Dorchester. Each pleaded not guilty.

Scituate police testified to trailing a mysterious car, running without lights, to the Adams estate, and a later search of the garages, in one of which a machine was found. Patrolman William F. Kane told of his capture of thrree men at gunpoint in the barn.

Wellesley's Terror Bull Only Went Out to Lunch

An all night search by Wellesley police and citizens for a bull that escaped from the grounds of the Academy of the Assumption ended with a big surprise—but not for the bull.

The searchers, instead of finding the animal stampeding the thickets, as they imagined, found him idly grazing in a meadow in Wellesley Hills.

A short time before the bull had dashed across Abbott st., nearly colliding with the automobile of Dr. Daniel Coleman.

STARR'S DEATH CASE CLOSED

The mystery in the death of Starr Faithfull, the former Boston beauty, whose body was found nearly five months ago on the sand at Long Beach, L. I., today went into the records as just that—a mystery.

Following an inquest held late yesterday, at Lynbrook, L. I., Coroner Edward T. Neu said:

"I'm not going to make a decision at this time and whatever I decide will be only a matter of opinion. It's all very mysterious indeed."

There was only one witness at the tardy inquest. He was Inspector Harold R. King of Nassau County, who simply described the finding of the bruised body, clad only in a filmy summer dress, stockings and a girdle.

Before Inspector King began his recital, Coroner Neu announced that he was holding the inquest, the first held in connection with the mystery, on instructions from the state board of health.

LINDYS LAND, HOP FOR EAST

Seattle, Oct. 22 (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh began the last stage of their homeward trip from the Orient today and expected to reach New York by air tomorrow night.

Arriving at Victoria, B. C., early today by steamer, they boarded a borrowed airplane and flew here in 46 minutes.

After a brief stop they hopped eastward, planning to land at Boise, Ida., for fuel.

Customs and immigration officers here hastened formalities incident to re-entering the United States.

The field was muddy but Lindbergh had no difficulty. He circled the airport several times before bringing the plane down.

WEE TRIO TIRE ON LONG 'HIKE'

The highroad of adventure was only a mile and a half long for three weary and bewildered Cambridge boys today.

Andrew Angelamo, three; his brother, George, four, and Winey Stanconas, five, all of Warren st., East Cambridge, approached Traffic Officer Thomas Menton in Central sq. this afternoon.

"North Pole," said George.

"Are we headed right, mister?" Winey asked.

Andrew was too tired to say anything.

"Got your lunch, too," observed the policeman. "Going to walk?"

"Sure," said Winey. "Only Andy, he gets too tired. He's too little."

FACTORIES PUT ON MORE MEN, ENLARGE

Advertising Appropriations, Increased, Produce New Flood of Orders, Survey Shows

By Associated Press

Brightening of the business horizon at least in a number of lines that might be listed as "specialties," is reported from various industrial spots along the Atlantic seaboard.

Among several concerns that cited good if not "booming" sales, it was noted that advertising, instead of being cut, had been sustained at previous levels or increased materially.

The Burnham & Morrill Company of Portland, one of the largest canning companies of Maine, reported it had had no slack season thus far; had kept its full force at work, and had even put on additional employes. Also it has maintained an extensive advertising campaign.

FACTORIES ENLARGING

In the textile end, the Premier Silk Mill Corporation of New Bedford, Mass., recently opened a new 48-loom unit and expects soon to install another 24 looms.

At Lewiston, Me., the Chamber of Commerce said the Bates Manufacturing Company, makers of bedspreads, was operating with 40 per cent more employes than last year at this time.

Another Lewiston firm, the M. C. Stone Co., shirt makers, doubled its previous production, enlarged its plant and machinery and added 200 employes to its force.

The Lynn, Mass., Chamber of Commerce recorded the establishment of two new shoe companies, and the Boston chamber announced that a manufacturer of women's shoes had added 5000 square feet of floor place to its factory and put on 80 additional employes.

From Lawrence, Mass., it was announced that the Belta Rubba Co. had purchased an additional mill and would add 250 employes to its present staff. The American Electro Metal Manufacturing Co. stated its business was greater for each month of 1931 than for 1930.

OTHER BOSTON INCREASES.

The Perin Walsh Co. of Boston, manufacturers of truck bodies and equipment, recently increased its woring force and expected to move into quarters providing twice its former space.

In the field of radio the Boston Chamber found that the Short Wave & Television Co. planned to lease additional space and increase the number of its employes from 25 to 200.

The Warren Telechron Co. of Ashland, Mass., announced that by increasing its advertising appropriation it was necessary to employ several hundred additional workers for a night shift in order to keep up with its increased business.

At Bristol, Conn., two brass companies said business compared well with last year although not equaling that of 1929. The Sessions Foundry Company there is working four days a week in some departments and expects to increase to five if its present business activity continues.

The Bristol Brass Corporation has found conditions steadily improving since July.

HAT BUSINESS GOOD

The hat manufacturers of Norwalk, Conn., apparently have joined the ranks of the optimists. The Cavanagh-Dobbs Company announced a substantial increase in business and its officials believe that conditions are on the mend.

At Danbury the hat makers are similarly cheerful. Here it was found hatting operations had consistently maintained a level only a little below normal and two concerns have been moved into larger plants to increase quantity production.

Card Players Stay Home, Taxes Show

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Folks seem to be playing cards at home these days instead of going to clubs and theaters. Internal revenue figures show an increase of $25,000 in the playing card tax during the third quarter, while club dues and theater admission taxes have decreased $90,924.

POSSE ON TRAIL OF 'KILLER'

At daylight searchers found a trail of crumbs leading into the woods a short distance from Winch st. A cake was missing from the home of Adams, a musician, and police believe that Regan's assailant, driven to desperation by hunger, devoured part of the cake as he fled.

OFFICER SHOT 5 TIMES

He was eating when Patrolman Regan, accompanied by Adams, who had been out, and Roland W. Hebert of Essex st., entered the Adams home after Hebert had seen the youth force open a window.

Regan entered with drawn gun, he told his comrades at the hospital, and called upon the burglar to "Stick 'em up!"

The response was six shots, evidently aimed at the patrolman's flashlight. Two bullets entered his abdomen, two the right hip and a fifth the right arm near the shoulder.

The burglar may be a youth who recently escaped from Concord reformatory, police believe. He is described as about 21, hatless, with a shock of blond hair and wearing a light-colored sweater.

FLEES INTO WOODS

Hebert first noticed the movements and drove back and picked up Patrolman Regan. They knocked at both the front and back doors but received no answer. Regan decided to enter the house and, drawing his revolver, lighted his flashlight and went in. Adams, returning home, joined him.

The burglar apparently was hiding behind a door in the living room and opened fire on the officer when the latter was about six feet away. Regan dropped his flashlight and slumped to the floor.

Police Captains Ask Traffic Law Changes

Nine Boston police captains joined with clergymen and citizens today at a hearing before the traffic commission at police headquarters, in urging changes in existing traffic regulations.

No parking was asked for Adams st., Dorchester; extension of the limitation of heavy trucks from St. Stephen's st., Back Bay; restriction of parking on the westerly side of Forest Hills station on Washington st., no parking in Magnolia st., Dorchester, and Walnut pk., Roxbury; alternate parking on Parker st., Roxbury from Tremont st., to Fisher ave., and in Green st., Jamaica Plain; one way in Orchard st., Jamaica Plain from Arborway to Center st., and one way in Stanton st., Dorchester.

address was indicated to be Elberon, N. J., wrote Miss Samuelson, addressing her as "Dear Sweetheart."

JEALOUSY AS MOTIVE

Corroboration of the theory that men were involved, detectives said, was obtained from an unnamed woman.

The woman witness said she attended Mrs. Judd's party by invitation and that the hostess obtained two of the three men who were present only by summoning them, under protest, from the Leroi-Samuelson home.

She and Mrs. Judd and one of the men drove from Mrs. Judd's house to the girls' apartment, she said, to get the other two men. Mrs. Judd refused to go in and asked the others not to tell Mrs. Leroi and Miss Samuelson she was in the car.

The girls argued the men should remain there instead of joining the other party. Finally, the woman told police, it apparently was settled amicably, and she and the two men went out, one lingering for what she said apparently was an affectionate parting.

SEEK OTHER MEN

The girls then followed them to the car at the curb, but Mrs. Judd refused to speak to them.

Police said they had learned the names of two of the men, but were not sure of the third. The theory, they said, did not involve likelihood that any of the men were involved in the actual slayings.

As search for Mrs. Judd continued throughout the West, belief grew that she either was hiding here or had committed suicide.

Although there were reports that persons resembling the hunted woman had been given rides by motorists near San Diego and at central California points toward Sacramento, officers felt she had not left the city.

WARSHIPS RUSH TO CYPRUS

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 22 (AP)—Two British cruisers are on the way from Crete to the Island of Cyprus, where, fragmentary dispatches said today, the governor's house at Nicosia had been burned in Nationalist disturbances.

One report said the Greek Orthodox bishop had proclaimed the union of the island with Greece on the ground it was the will of the people, and members of the Cyprus Legislature were said to have resigned.

Newton Wife Owes $207,000; No Assets

Liabilities of $207,200 are included in a voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed in Federal Court today by Mrs. Lillian R. Siegel of 253 Lowell ave., Newton. She has no assets and did not file a schedule. According to her attorney, Leon Kyges, she endorsed mortgage notes on her husband's account.

Tale of a Dog That's Green

Part of It's Shame and Part Paint

"This is a story about a dog," began Donovan, reporter.

"I suppose he barked at a fire and saved the occupants of the household."

"No," says Donovan. "He barked, but not at a fire, and he didn't save anything. This is the story:

"This dog is named Timothy. Don't ask me why. It is a big white dog, all white, one of those pickle dogs, you know.

"Pickle dogs?"

"Yeah. Chow-chows! Don't interrupt. Well, this dog is owned by Mrs. John Donovan of 451 Franklin st., Cambridge. No, she's not related to me.

"Well, last night Mrs. Donovan heard somebody come into her back yard and Timothy barked. She opened the back door and Timothy shot out into the darkness after the intruder.

"Well, Mrs. Donovan waited for barks or shouts of anguish, but there wasn't anything but silence. And five minutes later Timothy came whining to the door and she let him in. And what do you think?"

"I give up."

"Well, he's all striped with green paint and looks just like a zebra.

"So Mrs. Donovan notifies Sergt. Thomas Stokes, but they don't find the miscreant. The dog is very much ashamed. He looks like a zebra and it's hard washing him off."

"The House Next Door," by Burton Stevenson, is a mystery story of thrills and terror. A wierd tale of a strange cult and a sinister menace. Begin it in the next American Weekly in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, October 25th.

JAPS PROTEST NEW DEMAND BY LEAGUE

Geneva, Oct. 22 (AP)—Japan's representative on the League of Nations council today refused to accept any definite time limit for withdrawal of her troops from Manchuria.

His announcement was in response to a resolution by Aristide Briand, French foreign minister who is chairman of the council, proposing that Japan complete the Manchurian evacuation by Nov. 16 when the council would meet again.

The resolution also recommended that China pledge the security of Japanese lives and property in Manchuria.

When the Japanese delegate took the stand he had been expected to take, the council adjournd until tomorrow evening, so that the Tokio delegation could study the proposals and so that Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese member, could ask instructions from his government.

Litvinoff Raps League for Lack of Decisions

Moscow, Oct. 22 (AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, sharply criticised the League of Nations in a telegram sent to the secretariat at Geneva today.

"The absence of clarity and precision in the decisions of the league," Litvinoff said, "is one of the reasons for the sad events now occurring in Manchuria.

"My government is ready to accept when the necessary clarity and precision have been given to the outline of obligations, making it clear that all countries shall suspend armaments on an equal footing."

China Expresses Gratitude for American Mediation

Nanking, Oct. 22 (AP)—China replied today to the American note invoking the Kellogg Pact in the Sino-Japanese dispute.

The answer said the Chinese government deeply appreciated America's concern over Manchuria and co-operation with the League of Nations for a peaceful solution.

The note said China desired to co-operate to the fullest extent with American and other Kellogg Pact signatories.

1500 Chinese Trapped in Hills by Jap Troops

Tokio, Oct. 22—The remnants of a Chinese force of about 1500 men, defeated by Japanese troops near Tiehling, Manchuria, have been trapped in the hills northeast of Mukden, and Japanese are preparing to close in upon them, according to advices received here. Forty were reported killed and many wounded in the engagement near Tiehling.

Orchestra Silent in Death Tribute

Dr. Serge Koussevitzky and the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra stood in silence for one minute at rehearsal this morning on the stage of Symphony Hall in honor of Boris Kreinin, their fellow-musician, who died this morning as the result of an automobile accident.

4 Ohio Banks Taken Over to Liquidate

Columbus, O., Oct. 23 (AP)—Four Ohio banks were turned over to the state banking department today for liquidation. They are the George D. Harter Bank Co., of Canton; the City Savings Bank & Trust Co., of Alliance; the Ohio Merchants Trust Co., of Massillon, and the Farmers & Citizens Bank of Monroeville.

Frozen assets was given by the state banking department as the reason in each case.

More Americans Going to Quebec

Quebec, Oct. 21 (AP)—Six per cent more automobile tourists entered the Province of Quebec last summer than in 1930, J. E. Renaud, official of the Quebec Automobile Club, stated today.

Automobilists who sought 30-day permits numbered 430,842 as compared with 329,521 in 1930. Twenty-four hour permits were granted to 313,373. Similar permits were granted to 215,436 last year.

Steele Winner of the 1931 O. Henry Award

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Wilbur Daniel Steele, who has won more than a half-dozen annual awards in the O. Henry memorial contest for American short stories, has been named winner of the 1931 award.

Because he won the $500 first prize award last year, he is ineligible for the cash award now, but retains first place. The money will go to John D. Swain as author of the second best story.

Marblehead Pupils Fear Expose on Beer

Marblehead high school boys and girls were fearful today that because of disclosures by two girl graduates at the forum on the beer question last Sunday in St. Stephen's M. E. Church their social functions for the rest of the school year may be canceled.

At the forum, Elizabeth Grant and Edith Greenway told of having witnessed drinking at school functions in the past.

Two Suspects Held in Back Bay Break

Arrested on suspicion today by Brighton police, William J. Carroll and Thomas Martin, both of Bowen st., South Boston, were later charged with breaking and entering the apartment of Edith M. Gordon at 1431 Commonwealth ave., and stealing a typewriter and two gold rings.

Police said a pawnbroker identified them as men who pawned the rings.

HABITS OF INVENTION SAME SINCE 1789; CAPONE IN 1933

By GILBERT SELDES

THE JEALOUS PRIDE which, until the age of 10, I had in my native State, was affronted by the announcement that Thomas Edison was to be buried in Milan, O., and I turned rapidly to the full biography to reassure myself that he was, indeed, entirely a Jerseyman. I was wrong. I have learned something of American history in the years since we used to look eagerly out of the windows as our train passed Menlo Park, hoping that Edison himself might be flagging the express, might sit in our car, might notice two children who were, I suppose, the least inventive, the worst at handling a tool chest, in the whole world. In those days the happy encounter we dreamed of was always with Edison or Teddy Roosevelt, or, a little shyly, with Alice Roosevelt.

GILBERT SELDES

The Whittlers at Work

The thing I learned about America which has bearing on Edison's career is that in his first twenty years the whole of the country east of the Mississippi was full of inventors. It began with the Yankees who on long winter nights in Vermont were busy whittling to more purpose than the whittlers at the country store, who made models of everything which could be useful, and took out patents. Foreign observers were impressed by the patent which was in every active man's mind, if it wasn't already certified in Washington. And the amazing thing about these inventions is that, substantially, they anticipated the industry of the twentieth century. The system of large-scale production, which we think of as peculiarly Fordian, was not a theory, it was in action before 1800.

A Real Tradition

Because America has had no dynasties (and few ruling families), we have the impression that everything has happened by accident; which leads critics to say that America has no background, no continuity. And each generation feels, as no European generation feels, that the world only began with its birth. (As pure fact, this complaint about America's lack of background is itself part of the background of America; James Fenimore Cooper made it, and all the painters who ran to Italy because there was nothing to paint in the American backwoods. So they are forgotten, and Currier & Ives remain.)

But at least the American way of making machinery is continuous enough. In 1789 Eli Whitney contracted to supply 10,000 stand of arms to the Federal Government, and said that because he used machinery, instead of hand labor, "any article belonging to any one of the muskets will equally well fit any (other) of them." A hundred years later they were calling this the "uniformity system." Forty years after that, we know it as the system of interchangeable parts.

Inventor and Promoter

Edison was the link between the lone wolf inventor and the combining minds which now sit at the head of the researchers' table in the laboratories of great industrial concerns. Many of his inventions are of things which duplicate and multiply, especially those in telegraphy, the movies, and the phonograph; and generally he saw that multiplication was the essence of commercial success. In the movies, he resolutely refused to see this. When the quarrel over priority of invention is settled (as, I think, Terry Ramsaye has effectually settled it in Edison's favor, in his "Million and One Nights"), there remains the incredible obstinacy of Edison in fighting against the screen, in favor of the peep show. The peep show movie was in the stage of the phonograph with a single set of ear-tubes, or of the radio with head phones only; and Edison wanted to let it rest there. It was one occasion when his business sense was utterly wrong, because it was at variance with his inventive sense.

Einstein on Edison

Two commentaries on Edison's death deserve to be placed close together. One is the impersonal estimate that the value of his inventions to the world is fifteen and a half billion dollars. The other comes from Albert Einstein:

> "Thankfully we accept his legacy . . . as a mission placed in our hands. For to the new generation falls the task of finding the way for the right use of the gift given to us. Only if it solves this task will the new generation be worthy of its inheritance and become really happier than the former generation."

What Einstein says is peculiarly interesting because he has recently repeated his remark that comfort and happiness are not the goal of science. In that he stood at the other end of the world from Edison. Use, immediate effect, increase in the ease of living, motivated Edison all the time. When he found the "Edison effect," the basis of the vacuum tube, now used in a hundred different ways, from radio to germicides, he saw no instant application and put it away, returning to his work on the electric light. He put things together, he manipulated objects, he developed the work of other men—and at the same time he invented the things that were needed. In all this he was, as the world feels, typically American. It was suitable that he should have been born in the center of America.

Capone in 1933

An optimistic despatch from Chicago says that Al Capone may be in jail in two years. One gathers that the jury which found him guilty either was not intimidated or assumed that the Capone power was broken; but Capone himself has ordered light suits, without stripes, for the Florida winter season. A week ago, Capone was becoming ludicrous; today he is only another millionaire convicted of a crime, and enjoying it.

A Colorless Character

Except for the passages of humor, the trial of Capone was disappointing because it was colorless. The crime itself is one which many people practice in a smaller way, and this, in fact, is the implied defense behind all of Capone's public activities. (The private business of putting worthy lads on the spot seems to be out of court entirely, and I still do not know who has proof that Capone is guilty of it.) People drink, says Capone; people falsify their obligations to the Government, he implies. Surely he will not be made a sacrifice for the whole nation.

Grant him his plea, it is still a pity that he did not make it with more vehement gestures. He turns out to be a pallid sort, a slightly terrified business man, with only a business man's last resource: money enough to hire good lawyers.

Policeman Pawns His Pants and Loses Job

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP)—Keeping his uniform trousers in pawn for nearly four months cost Police Sergt. Victor Lehmann his job.

He managed to get along by borrowing trousers from colleagues who happened to be off duty—until one day the entire police force was called out. The sergeant had to report in civilian trousers and was immediately discharged.

Baby "Moratorium" Opposed by Doctor

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Dr. Eric Matsner, medical director of the American Birth Control League, in an interview today scored as "perfectly absurd" the proposal for a moratorium on babies made recently by "a prominent birth control advocate."

Mrs. Margaret Sanger recently was quoted as suggesting such a moratorium, but Dr. Matsner did not refer to her by name.

Back 6-Hour Day, Says Labor Leader

New York, Oct. 22 (INS)—Endorsing the proposal for a six-hour work day, made by William Randolph Hearst last Sunday, John Sullivan, president of the New York Federation of Labor today urged all workers to give their support to the plan.

Sullivan represents more than 1,000,000 trade unionists in this State. In his opinion the six-hour day will prove a tremendous factor in reducing or totally eliminating unemployment.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads —Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

LAVAL WARNS WORLD FACES CRISIS

State Stimson, Mayor Walker and Albert H. Wiggin. He said he came from a nation determined to co-operate with America to help restore prosperity.

"A grave crisis has arisen which has interrupted your development as well as that of other countries," he said. "In a world torn with doubt our two great democracies together must search for and apply methods which will restore calm and re-establish equilibrium.

"It is through an affirmation of faith and confidence that I desire to come into contact with the American people. I know their enthusiasm. I know that they are capable of generous impulses combining their deep sense of reality with their noble idealism. They will respond, if necessary, to calls which may reach them from the old world.

"I speak in the name of a country which is determined to join its efforts with yours to ward off the dangers which menace our civilization."

DEBTS, WAR, PEACE.

Premier Laval spoke in French, with Ambassador Paul Claudel of France acting as interpreter.

M. Laval brought with him no fixed or definite program on which to base his discussions with President Hoover. He was expected, however, to discuss several subjects which the French consider more or less inter-twining.

Among these were disarmament, economy recovery, the gold standard, inter-governmental debts, national security and co-operation among nations, particularly between France and the United States.

Premier Laval expects to permit his host to open the discussion and to give France's viewpoint only thereafter. It is generally understood that he does not expect to take back any definite agreement, on paper or otherwise, but merely to thresh out with the President preliminaries looking toward co-operation on the various subjects.

As the premier stepped down from the Macom through the lines of tall silk hats backed by prancing police cavalry, his vivacious young daughter, Mlle. Josette Laval, walked by his side, smiling upon the multitude. At the waist of her light blue corduroy suit, she wore a bouquet of orchids presented by Mayor Walker's reception committee.

INTERPRETER COLLAPSES.

The reception aboard the Ile de France was saddened by the collapse of Henri Prince, hotel magnate and official interpreter for the mayor's committee.

Overworked by the strain of preparation for the huge welcome, he dropped unconscious on the deck during the handshaking. He was removed to a hospital, where physicians said he was suffering from a heart attack and a hemorrhage, but would recover.

M. Laval, who hails from the same Auvergne that gave Lafayette to the world, chatted informally with more than 50 reporters on the way up the bay.

"Messieurs," he said, "I find you just as sympathetic as Parisian newspapermen."

Before leaving for Washington aboard a special train at 11:25 after their brief stay, the premier and his daughter gratified some of their desire to see New York. They saw it at its wildest. Rolling up Broadway, surrounded by prancing horses, with ticker-tape showering and cheers rending the air of the narrow canyon, both seemed to enjoy it all.

Laval and Stimson Start Problem Parley on Train

Aboard Laval Special Train, Philadelphia, Oct. 22 (AP)—Premier Laval of France plunged into the business of his mission today as his special train sped toward Washington and gave only fleeting glances at the fields and hills radiant with autumn foliage.

Hardly had the train left New York when he was in conference with Secretary of State Stimson. They discussed for more than an hour the approaches to the field that Laval's later conversations with President Hoover will cover.

The Premier made it plain he had come thoroughly prepared with facts, but without any set program. He reiterated this point later in a chat with newspapermen.

"We do not expect to solve all the problems before us," he said, "but we shall cover in our talks all the questions that confront our two countries."

Laval's Daughter to Be Guest at Dinner-Dance

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—The dark and comely daughter of Premier Laval of France will spend her first evening here dancing like any American debutante at a debut party.

While M. Laval dines at the White House amid formal ceremony, Mlle. Josette will enjoy an informal dinner and dance in the French embassy, with Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the French ambassador, as her hostess.

PREMIER LAVAL SECRETARY STIMSON

Premier Pierre Laval of France, former cab driver, is shown riding up Broadway, New York, today, with Secretary of State Stimson shortly after his arrival for a four-day visit to President Hoover. Pretty Mlle. Laval Finds Broadway 'Formidable'

By DOROTHY DUCAS

International News Service Correspondent

New York, Oct. 22—Mlle. Josette Laval, 19-year-old daughter of the French Premier, gazed upon Broadway for the first time this morning and found it "formidable."

Standing on the windy deck of New York's official welcoming tugboat, the Macom, to which she had stepped from the steamship Ile de France, she asked excitedly:

"Where is Broadway?"

"Oh, c'est formidable!" she cried, showing her very straight white teeth in a broad smile.

Then she wanted to know how long the street was, and when told it went from the Battery to Spuyten Duyvil Creek she was surprised. She had been reading about New York before she left France, but nowhere in her reading had she been told that the most famous street in America covered the whole length of Manhattan Island.

A little murmur of appreciation from the distinguished visitors and newspaper correspondents who rode down the bay to meet her, rose when she walked down the gangplank, preceding her dignified father.

She is pretty.

She has large brown eyes, brown hair, worn to give the effect of a long bob, and her skin is dusky, the kind described in this country as "sun-tanned."

She was wearing a lapis blue ribbed wool ensemble, with a long coat that tied in Buster Brown fashion at the neck and had two large patch pockets. Her hat was a modified wool beret, exactly matching the dress. She wore brown alligator pumps with brown suede straps and carried a brown flat purse.

She looked, really, just as Americans expect a French girl to look: very chic. Her dress, she confided, when asked, was a Lucile Paray model and the hat came from Agnes.

Incidentally, American fashion observers noted she was wearing the color that has been hailed as the leading shade for next spring. Thus she anticipated the mode, as the United States knows it, by at least a season and a half.

"No, I am not engaged," she repeated, for emphasis. "I am not engaged at all. I'm studying law in Paris. I do not think I will be a lawyer. There are many women lawyers in France. But I do it—just to have something to do."

"Perhaps you contemplate marriage as a career some day?" someone asked.

"May-be," said Mlle. Laval, teasingly.

A member of her father's party explained that she is "too young" to think of romance.

She plays many games but none very well, she said. She rides, swims, plays tennis, and aboard the Ile de France she played shuffleboard.

Wiggin Asks Public to Be Kind to Laval

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the governing board of the Chase National Bank, the largest bank in the world, and head of the committee which recently investigated Germany's financial position, said today it was the duty of Americans to do nothing and say nothing that would put impediments in the way of the success of the mission of Premier Laval of France to the United States.

"There should be no premature exposure of his plan," Mr. Wiggin said. "We should leave President Hoover and Premier Laval at peace and let them settle the affairs before them in their own way."

THE "300" CLUB HAD A GALA OPENING LAST EVENING, and what a delightful party was enjoyed by all. It will be nice to have a small, intimate dancing club with good music to run away to after a series of crushes at the big balls and deb dances. And after the theater, what a charming spot to have a quiet supper and dreamy dance.

We arrived late and were greeted by Mr. Johnson, master of ceremonies, himself, and it was nice to see him. He has been missed at the Ritz-Carlton by his many friends.

Among the throng we noted many familiar faces of last season, debs and brides. Virginia Taylor was with a large party. Her frock was of deep red velvet over which she wore an ermine wrap. She looked very pretty, but may we suggest a different bob, Virginia. In fact, we would suggest a different headdress for almost everyone with the long evening gowns.

Mrs. C. Terry Collens Attends

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD STURGIS DANCED OFTEN together. Mistress Mary must have been wearing one of her trousseau gowns, a lovely painted chiffon, but it was LONG waisted. They will do it in Boston in depression times. Although not being really beautiful, Mrs. C. Terry Collens has personality and her black and white dress was noticeably chic. She is a pretty dancer.

Also noticeable in the crowd was Carol Smith, her bronze hair set off by her deep blue velvet gown with original silver bodice. Her escort was Malcolm Storey. Grace Madden looked pretty in black chatting with Mr. William Taylor, and Elizabeth Berenson seemed mildly interested in a tall swain. The Olcutt Payons were there, as was Mr. Philip Wrenn. We will be seeing you there again soon.

HANS WIENER AND OTTO ASHERMAN are opening a studio in town to teach the young how to dance. We are going to see if he is as good as his ballyhooers say he is. The girls at the League seem to approve of his method, but WE have got to be sold on any method we have found in Boston thus far. One ambitious day we entered a dancing studio and asked the manager which method of the ballet he taught, the French, Russian or Italian. It makes a difference to a certain part of the anatomy and we wanted to be right on the thing. Could you believe it, he said he didn't know. He just taught people to kick and bend etc. We believe Hans Wiener gives his OWN interpretations. That is always safe, isn't it?

A SMART DANCING CLASS is being held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Gannett in Milton. It is for the younger generation, girls and boys from 14 to 16. Last year this class was held at the Chilton Club. Mrs. George S. West, Mrs. Gasper Bacon and Mrs. Gannett are the matrons sponsoring them.

Smart Dances

OF COURSE THE FRIDAY and Saturday evenings at the Hotel Somerset will be as smart as always this season. These are for sub and sub-debs and begin early and end at a sensible hour.

* * *

MET FRANCESCA LAIGHTON recently. She is a distinguished and charming young thing, tall with dark eyes, deep and thoughtful. She looks like her mother, Mrs. Chester Humphreys, and her party is on the 31st of this month at the Somerset.

SAW VIRGINIA McNEIL ON the street today chatting with Jane Brown. They made Boylston st. look like the Champs Elysees, their fall tailleurs were so attractive. Miss McNeil's costume was that rich hunter's green trimmed with cocoa fox, short jacket belted. She was one of the prettiest girls who came out last year but somehow didn't get really started. The boys thought she was a peach and the stag line waited until she arrived before the evening was complete but somehow she was just over the line for the Junior League election. We hear she may be elected, however. All the girls can't get in the first year.

In Red Suit

JANE CERTAINLY HAS improved since she stepped out of the egg last fall. We felt a little sorry for Jane when we first met her as she seemed to have an inferiority complex but, my dears, if you could have seen her today in a red eton suit with striped blouse, and the most adorable hat perched on her blonde curls—she has the most bewitching profile—you could hardly believe it was the same girl. Being in the limelight for a few months does wonders for some of these pets.

JANE WAS HURRYING BACK to her job. She brings trade to one of the fine shops and we are going right in there to try and duplicate that hat.

* * *

WE HEAR THERE IS GOING to be such an increase in the population next spring that the layette business is going to just BOOM.

Hair Waves for the New Hats

By ANN ARDEN

SINCE ALL the hats have taken to sitting on the right sides of heads, there must be a readjustment in hair waving. You see, the hats need something to fill them out, and when the hair is rightly waved it becomes rather a trimming to the hat, or at any rate a most beautiful setting for that hat.

* * *

WITH SHORT hair in order to make it that perfect setting which every woman wants it to be, for one wave the upper range of the hair is cut shorter than the lower one. Then the curls are turned up instead of down and the head becomes a mass of ringlets which cannot help but be becoming. The flatter they are kept, of course, the more style do they manage to maintain.

THE HAIR is grown just a bit long at the neck now. Often it is turned up in a tight roll and again it is more wavy in feeling. There is no help for it though, you must let that shingled bob grow out if you would be in fashion.

* * *

HAIR HAS again become a crowning glory, and truly it is a relief to have our faces framed in soft and becoming lines again.

* * *

BOTH SIDES of the same coiffure are pictured, a rather formal arrangement equally suitable to enhance our hair-revealing hats, or to serve charmingly as an evening head dress. Wide waves edged in soft curls give fullness about the face, a cluster of curls is stressed each side, but more fullness on the right side emphasizes the prevailing tilt of our hats. The effect is of a swirl with puffs at the neck making a lovely natural finish.

Purchasing Agents May Convene Here

The executive committee of the National Association of Purchasing Agents opened a meeting at Hotel Statler today which may result in the selection of this city by the association for its convention in 1933. The committee, consisting of 12 members from various sections of this country and Canada, came to Boston on invitation of Sumner R. Keyes, president of the New England Purchasing Agents.

The local body wished an opportunity to demonstrate that Boston has the facilities to handle the convention of 900 delegates two years hence. Following a business meeting, the executive committee planned a sightseeing trip this afternoon.

WE ARE SORRY TO SEE that Mr. and Mrs. Chapin (the John R.'s, you know) cancelled the dance they were to give in honor of their attractive daughter, Martha, tomorrow evening at The Country Club in Brookline, but Mrs. Henry Brainbridge, the debutante's maternal grandmother, will still entertain her at a tea just a week later, the 30th, at the Chilton Club. Miss Martha's name appears on the provisional list for the Junior League.

MRS. PAUL D. RUST AND Mrs. Randolph Edgar, both of Boston, are again staying in New York for a short time, at the St. Regis Hotel, where, we notice, in spite of the novelty and grandeur of the Waldorf-Astoria, our best Bostonians still "hang their hats" while in the metropolis. There and the Weylin and others of that sort.

John Knowles to Entertain for Niece

Mr. John A. Knowles will entertain his niece's guests at an ushers' dinner as well as the dance. Miss Leslie Blake is to be honored on Saturday evening at the Dedham Polo and Country Club by her uncle, and the affair should be a very gay one, as Miss Leslie's popularity was such before she left for Europe last year that everyone is more than glad to welcome her back as a debutante.

Among other things, Miss Blake is a provisional member of the Junior League and her name appears on the new list of Vincent Club elections. She is the daughter, just by the way, of the Arthur Blakes of The Lilacs in Dedham, which, if you know your geography, is conveniently near to the Noble and Greenough school, and those Noblemen—!

We were surprised to hear that the deb's sister, Miss Harriet, whose deb days were over last spring, has returned from a summer in Europe. Surprised because we thought that the winter was to be spent there also, in the study of music, dancing and other arts that she is so proficient in. But we don't blame her for not wanting to miss the fun of a sister's coming out and she will probably return before long. Two such talented sisters are not to be found in every family, for Miss Leslie plays the piano, too, and beautifully! More power to you!

Swedish Group Plan Bazaar

Governor and Mrs. Ely head the list of distinguished people invited to attend the bazaar of the Swedish Charitable Society, taking place in Horticultural Hall, on Nov. 19, 20 and 21, to raise funds for the Home for Aged People at 206 Waltham st., West Newton. Miss Edith Erickson is secretary of the bazaar group.

The Aquilo Club, a junior league of the Swedish Charitable Society, is taking a prominent part in the bazaar. Miss Hazelton Peterson is chairman of this group. Oscar W. Swangren is head of the bazaar and is assisted by George C. Torngren, Martin Paulson, Elias B. Forsland and Henry P. Paulson. John Blomquist has charge of the donation committee.

Fresh and Flavorful to greet your taste comes the famous

DEERFOOT FARM SAUSAGE

THIS is our sixty-first season of making sausage at Deerfoot Farms. And if you could visit us you'd quickly see that it's the all-important activity.

Quality is our constant watchword. Tender roasting cuts of fresh pork, such as you would choose for your table, are selected for this famous sausage. What's more, this meat is chopped to a perfect consistency instead of being ground. Finally, it is seasoned with our secret blend of savory spices.

As a result of this care in manufacture, Deerfoot Farm Sausage has established for itself a most enviable reputation. For years it has been the choice of people who appreciate fine food. Leading hotels, restaurants and dining-cars serve Deerfoot Farm Sausage and offer it by name on their menus.

QUINCY CLUE IN COLLINGS DEATH CASE

A possible new clue in the slaying of Benjamin Collings, Long Island yachtsman, linking an alleged Boston smuggler of Chinese and a boat stolen at Quincy and wrecked at Amsterdam, Holland, was revealed by Quincy police today.

According to Lieut. John J. Avery, authorities at Mineola, L. I., believe the sloop Duffer II, stolen from Quincy last summer and washed ashore at Amsterdam last week, may have been involved in the Collings murder.

TWO MEN SOUGHT.

George Polow, alleged smuggler of Chinese, and Alex Hitchcock, both of Milford st., Boston, believed to have sailed the sloop across the Atlantic, are being sought.

Lieut. Avery said he notified the Mineola authorities of the facts in his possession in connection with the boat, in the belief they might have a bearing on the killing of Collings.

The sloop, a 29-footer with auxiliary engine, was stolen July 29, two days after Hitchcock had won freedom on a suspended sentence for the larceny of a canoe. While in custody he had told police that Polow, also know as George Miller, had helped him steal the canoe.

STOLE BOATS, HE SAYS.

He added that Polow smuggled Chinese from Cuba into this country, and frequently stole boats to use for this purpose, afterward wrecking them.

With the larceny of the boat both Hitchcock and Polow disappeared, police said, no word being received from them until despatches from Amsterdam told of the wreckage being cast ashore. The only article of importance found in the wreckage was an auto license made out to Polow.

Hitchcock, police said, had told them that Polow, in wrecking boats, left articles of identification in the hope of being thought drowned.

BUSINESS LOGIC GIVES N. E. LEAD

Providence, Oct. 22—Sound New England banks, varied industries and rational conservatism were cited today for New England's leadership in the economic conditions over other parts of the country.

In speeches before the Advertising Federation of America at Hotel Biltmore, more than 400 delegates heard outlined New England's assets and its possibilities for more.

Dudley Harmon of Boston, executive vice-president of the New England Council, told the reasons for New England's successful cope.

Today was the first of a two-day convention of the first district of the federation, comprising delegations from the New England states.

'T. R.' REVERSED IN JESSE JAMES

Jesse James was "a Teddy Roosevelt gone wrong," who might have been President if given half a chance, according to Prof. Winslow Porter of Northeastern University, speaking at a noon talk to students today.

Prof. Porter said he came from the same county as Jesse James, the West's most famous outlaw.

"Al Capone makes war on society, but society made war on Jesse James," he said. "His family was hounded because they sympathized with the South in the war.

"He became a bandit, and with a kernel of truth, fiction writers built up dream stuff about him as they did about Robin Hood, who was a bolshevik 600 years ahead of his time, robbing the rich tq give to the poor."

For Deep Coughs
Or Colds Where It
Will Pay You
To Be Sure

Creomulsion is made to do the utmost for a cough or cold. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is for quick relief, for safety, when the cough seems deep.

Mild coughs may yield to a lesser help—to some single factor, maybe. But no one can tell which factor will do most for any certain cough. And all coughs should be stopped at once. So careful people, more and more, give Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than some helps. But it means a seven-way help—the best men know. And it costs you nothing if it fails to bring the quick relief you seek. Your druggist guarantees it.

Now two sizes 60c—$1.25.

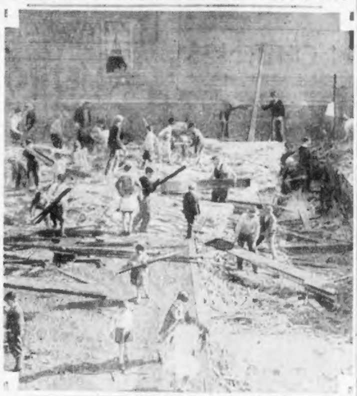
GANG CARRIES OFF HOUSE



Three years ago this was a house in East 8th st., South Boston. It was condemned and since then has been a wood supply for school children. Today, while the children were in school, it collapsed. In no time, men, women and children swarmed the ruins to carry away what wood they could handle. It won't be long now.

Mayor's Plea Gets Work for Many

The response to his request that churches, fraternal, social, labor and financial organizations create jobs has been gratifying, Mayor Curley stated today.

In a communication to leaders of the various groups the mayor pointed out that many hundreds of person would find employment if necessary repairs, cleaning and remodeling of buildings and erection of new structures were done at this time.

PUPILS ESCAPE HOUSE CRASH

The lives of a score of school children were saved by a few minutes today in Eighth [illegible] Boston, with the collapse [illegible] building just before the noon recess of school.

The building, condemned by the city three years ago and unoccupied since, was visited every noon by children who gathered wood en route home from St. Augustine's school.

Without warning it collapsed a few minutes before the children would have been gathering the noon supply.

The building settled into the foundation with a roar and in quick time men, women and children swarmed into the debris to gather up the broken pieces.

It was owned by Daniel Bradley, who formerly lived there.

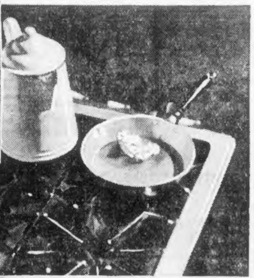
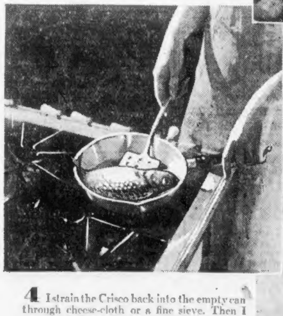
How I fry fish . . .
. . without smoke
[and with an improvement in the flavor]

1 I prepare the fish. Then I put Crisco into a cold frying pan. To cook the fish without smoke or scorching I fry slowly. I use enough Crisco to partly cover it. It does not require the constant attention frying would if I were to use only a little fat.



2 I put the frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted, I put in a small piece of bread.



3 As soon as the bread starts to brown, I put in the fish. Cook slowly until the fish is nearly done: then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the frying pan, I can turn the fish easily without breaking, if I wait until it is almost done.

4 I strain the Crisco back into the empty can through cheese-cloth or a fine sieve. Then I can use the Crisco for the next thing I want to fry. Crisco doesn't carry the flavor of one food to the next. Furthermore, Crisco itself tastes sweet and fresh, just as it comes from its air-tight can. And, when you come to think of it, should you ever fry in a fat you are unwilling to taste?

COOKING SCHOOL NOTE by Mrs. J. Watson Shockley

In the cooking school I conducted recently under the auspices of the American, I stressed modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, I use and recommend CRISCO—for it's a modern shortening. Mrs. J. Watson Shockley.

The Things I've Dared to Do!

By Morris Gest, Famous Producer.

(A LESSON FOR YOU FRAIDY-CATS!)

I've dared because "Daring" is my middle name!

And here are some of the things I've dared to do.

To put my thumb to my nose and wiggle my fingers at the Czar's picture in school when I was a small boy so that they sent me home and then sent me away from Russia....To cross the ocean for Boston and New York alone at the age of nine....To black up my face and body on July 4th for Diamond Lew Walker of Boston and to play a wild man in a cage on the Boston Common....To put up a canvas at the Buffalo Exposition the day after President McKinley died, paint the name of Czolgosz, the assassin, on it and sell three baseballs for a dime to throw at him.

To dress a German as Abdul Kader, the Oriental painter, and, with his wife's sister and his daughter, show him at Hammerstein's Victoria as Abdul Kader, the man with three wives....To take a Spanish girl who was an extra and a dancer from David Belasco's "Rose of the Rancho," send her to Europe and bring her back as Carmencita 10 years after the real Carmencita had died....To shanghai the Russian Giant and bring him to this country after Barnum & Bailey and John Ringling had failed to get him. When I took the Russian Giant to Washington to see President Roosevelt he wouldn't believe he was seeing the head of the nation, because there were no guards and soldiers to protect him....To ask Al Jolson to ride a camel in Madison Square Garden and to have Melville Ellis lead him.

To send Gertrude Hoffman to Europe to see Maude Allen's "Salome" and to have Hammerstein kick us off the stage of the Victoria because he was afraid of hurting Mary Garden's performance of "Salome" at the Manhattan Opera House. I went to California and, when Hammerstein had forgiven me, came back to New York and put Gertrude Hoffman on at the Victoria in the "Salome" number. It ran for 21 weeks and saved the theater.

To bring, in 1910, the first Russian ballet to America. Their dancing of "La Sylphide," with Gertrude Hoffman in the leading role, was the inspiration for hundreds of thousands of American girls to take up toe dancing. Before that, none of them could.

To fall in love with David Belasco's daughter when he invited me to join his party at Child's restaurant in New Haven, where we both happened to be. There were 13 at his table, so he asked me to make the 14th. I fell in love with the little girl sitting opposite me. She was his daughter Reina and is now my wife.

To punch two gatemen in the nose at the Grand Central Station when they wouldn't permit me to go through the gate to the train with Mrs. Belasco and her two daughters. This pleased Mr. Belasco so much that he made an appointment for me to see him at his theater. When I went there a bodyguard was drawn up, consisting of Benjamin F. Roeder, Will Dean, Charles Emerson Cook, Downing Clark and William Boag, all members of his staff, but I dared to break through, seize his horse's bridle so that Mr. Belasco was obliged to see me.

To pay a $5000 advance royalty for "Experience" when it was still only a one-act play, and, with William Elliott and Ray Comstock, produce it; first at the Booth Theater, where it ran at a loss of three or four thousand dollars a week for several weeks, and then to take it to the Casino, where we placed in front of the theater the first life-size cut-out figures of characters ever seen, opened with a Washington Birthday breakfast matinee, and the play made over a million dollars.

To induce Geraldine Farrar to go to Hollywood to do a picture of "Carmen" and to have Jesse Lasky and Sam Goldwyn take her. That success caused Mr. A. Zukor to take them into partnership and so the Famous Players-Lasky-Goldwyn firm was formed.

To persuade Col. Higgins and Charles Ellis to allow Geraldine Farrar's "Carmen" picture to be shown in their great and dignified Symphony Hall in Boston. Twenty Postal Telegraph operators sat in the lobby wiring the news and details of the opening to the whole world.

To cancel a five-year contract with Mr. Zukor, amounting to $500,000, on account of 50 per cent of the profits, after I had drawn $200,000 in advance. This was done because my love for the living theater forced me to withdraw from pictures.

To take the Century Theater when Col. Vanderbilt and Otto H. Kahn offered it to me and asked me to take it without payment of a cent after Florenz Ziegfeld and Charles Dillingham had failed to get it....To lease the Manhattan Opera House, which I had swept out for Oscar Hammerstein in former years. I leased it for $70,000 a year....To buy "Aphrodite" in Paris for a thousand dollars when no one else thought it had a chance. Then to see, while on a train going to Atlantic City, the picture of a girl in a copy of Variety. Learning that the subject of the picture was Dorothy Dalton, I sent for her and, although she was not of the stage, but was in picture work, engaged her for the part of Chrysis. At my suggestion she knelt at David Belasco's feet and begged him to rehearse her for the part, which he did. Then I dared to engage a great cast and spend $400,000 on the production. Miss Dalton's appearance in "Aphrodite" afterward led to her being engaged by Mr. Zukor at a salary of $5000 a week, which she drew for two years without being called on to do any work.

To bring Balieff's "Chauve Souris" here when everyone else had passed it up and to have it run 65 weeks at $5 a seat....To give a benefit for the poor Russian artists of the "Chauve Souris," with the following participating: Ed Wynn as carriage opener, Al Jolson as doorkeeper, the late Sam Bernard as coat room boy, Dorothy and Lillian Gish as program girls, Laurette Taylor, Doris Keane and Lillian Gish as ushers, Walter Catlett and Leon Errol as water boys.

To ask Joseph Schenck and Paul Block for $50,000 each when I was broke and to get it from them....To buy "Mima" from David Belasco because Ferenc Molnar, the author, wrote on a dollar bill "Instead of you making dollars out of my manuscript I make a manuscript out of your dollar." This grew out of ex-Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo making a collection of one dollar bills autographed by prominent people with the idea of teaching me how to save money. I lost $165,000 because it was impossible to take "Mima" on the road....To ask Al Jolson when misfortune overtook me to give me an interest in "The Wonder Bar" without one cent of payment which he did and put me on my feet again.

To produce the Passion Play when I was told it could not be done in New York and to encounter fierce opposition from many directions, but to transform the Hippodrome into an atmosphere of the Holy Land, donate the proceeds of the first six nights to charity and make a beautiful production although it broke me.

To ask Otto H. Kahn for a quarter of a million dollars to help do "The Miracle," and to get it, to become responsible for $300,000 of my own money when the great production was made to do the biggest business ever done in the history of the century....To engage Lady Diana Manners for the part of the Madonna in "The Miracle" merely from seeing her in the royal enclosure at Ascot when I was in a box with Sir Edward and Lady Hulton....To engage Eleanor Patterson, who had never played a part before, for the Nun in "The Miracle" in Chicago....To take Rosamond Pinchot, niece of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, for the part of the Nun before Miss Patterson played it....To bring Duse to America when she was ill and, after she had failed here twice, to charge $20 a seat the first night. The tour was the greatest and most successful of her life.

To ask Mussolini when he thanked me for what I had done for Duse and told me how much he appreciated it, not to stand with his arms folded across his chest in a Napoleonic attitude while we were being photographed together. He changed his pose... To appeal to the station master at the Grand Central Station on arriving too late for the Twentieth Century and to succeed in having him stop the train and have it run back into the station for my accommodation.

These—and a thousand other things—I have dared to do.

QUEENIE SMITH TRIUMPHS AGAIN

Star Is at Her Best in 'The Little Racketeer' at Shubert Premiere

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Without intending any disrespect to the honest labors of the Messrs. Shubert in their attempt to make "The Little Racketeer" something to be remembered, we are still inclined to believe more in its assorted talents than in its highly exploited revolving stage. As a matter of fact, these revolving stages are becoming a little common; for the most part they are merely mechanical trappings to catch the unwary wanderer in nocturnal hours.

Nicholas Young

On the other hand, you were more than ever convinced at the Shubert last night that talents like Queenie Smith's are not only uncommon, but, in these restless days, even uncommonly rare. By which, you may take it, Queenie Smith ran true to form; was pleasing in personality, danced with old time vigor and generally comported herself in the best of musical comedy tradition. You could depend upon her for that in any event—and she played her part to the last despairing echo. If "The Little Racketeer" seemed a trifle retrospective in its musical numbers; if tunes which you believed should be new rang through your ears like old friends, blame the radio, not the Messrs Shubert. Of course, there may have been, and probably were, interpolations, but you may be quite sure that only properly registered song hits were included in the play's musical library.

It is never very difficult to work up a little dignified and respectable blood pressure on Queenie Smith's account. She is about all that is left to us worth talking about in musical comedy. The stage may emerge into night lights with more talented dramatic stars, but none of them, even the best, can more than hopefully vie with her in personality; there may be better dancers concealed somewhere in the theater's dark recesses, but we do not know them. There even may be demure maids with a finer grade of comedy value, but we have never met one. And by all this you should begin to grasp what Queenie Smith means to that new concoction called "The Little Racketeer." She made it endurable.

Even so gifted an artist as Miss Smith expects a little help from friendly sources, and, of course, it was forthcoming. As an example, there was Paul Ash and his orchestra, which, you might be told, worked both back stage and front with equal facility. Mr. Ash himself, the old maestro, began his night's philanderings on the stage, swinging a mean baton and chatting amiably with whomsoever got into range; next, you discovered him in the pit, running not only his big band of musicians but also conducting the show with excellent authority. Later he was again upon the rostrum; you found him everywhere.

Other artists of quality entered the proceedings, some of them old friends. You renewed acquaintance with Wesley Pierce and Hazel Harris—merely a dancing team, but what a pair. The nonchalant Mr. Pierce has intrigued us for at least four seasons; he is a dancer bored by his duties—but he dances. In every step last night there was a good laugh. Grace Hayes of night club and radio fame—if you can call it fame—sang familiar songs and quarreled with everybody in the show; John Price Jones turned alternately from music to melodrama, from melodrama to love, and for the most part seemed reasonably genuine. Hamtree Harrington, of high color, veteran of many an honest-to-goodness dusky show, mixed with the white folks and out-acted most of them. And that was "The Little Racketeer" in respect to its responsible personnel.

If it has not already been mentioned, "The Little Racketeer" was a big show—big in scenic equipment, gorgeous in costuming and vast in population. There was nothing small about it except its star, and Queenie Smith weighs exactly 105 pounds.

DAVID MANNERS GETS BIG ROLE IN PATHE FILM

Budding Star Joins Cast of Constance Bennett's 'A Lady With a Past'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Joel McCrea dates his success on the screen from the time he played opposite Constance Bennett. Constance took an interest in the young man, invited him to her house, encouraged him to seek better roles with a result that soon Joel was sitting on top of the world. Now Hollywood is wondering if the same thing will happen to David Manners, who has been borrowed from Warner Brothers by Pathe to emote opposite Constance in "A Lady With a Past."

Louella O. Parsons

Of course, we couldn't say that David is a stranger to the films. He has "The Last Flight," "The Greeks Had a Word for It" and "The Miracle Woman" to [illegible]. His career has been steadily growing in Hollywood.

If plans, made in New York materialize, Connie will have a [illegible] party at the opening of the Mayfair November 7. Mr. and Mrs. Blumenthal (Peggy Fears) are leaving for the coast with friends to be guests of Miss Bennett.

You can depend upon the Fox Co. to snatch all the available newspaper men. Winfield Sheehan used to be one himself before he went into the picture business. Neal O'Hara, formerly of the World, is driving to the coast this week to join the Fox staff of dialogue writers. Mr. O'Hara is apparently the type who can do two things at one time. Not many people are so gifted. Speaking of Fox, Sol Wurtzel is back in town. He leaves for the coast immediately. He has had a vacation in Europe and comes back feeling 20 years younger.

When Reginald Denny's young son grows up he will have no doubt about how he looked when he was a crying infant. Reginald takes pictures every day of the youngster. Some of them with Bubbles, others with the baby alone and some of them with Reginald himself. He uses enough film to do a small studio. Most of these movie children have record kept from the time they are a week old.

There was a time when an actor who was making personal appearances was doing it because his popularity was on the wane. Today the biggest and best of the stars are giving the public a chance to see them face to face. In fact it is only a popular actor who can get a personal appearance engagement. James Cagney, Warner Brothers star, opens in Philadelphia Oct. 30 after which he will make a tour of personal appearances for Warners.

This seems to be the press-agent year. So many press agents are selling stories and getting recognition. E. A. Patterson, who visits me in Hollywood once a week with pictures from Warner Brothers Theater, and George Green, have just sold a story to Universal called, "Sons of the Legion." It is not a story of the Foreign Legion. Ever since Norman Krasna could not get his play read at Warner Brothers, and then came to Broadway and sold it, the film companies are very considerate with press-agents who have ideas.

In a personal [illegible] of the National Broadcasting Co. with George McClelland, general manager, I saw B. A. Rolfe directing the largest orchestra in captivity. B. A. [illegible] during the days when I was writing pieces for the old Morning Telegraph was one of our film magnates. He is probably making more money today than he was when he owned a lot of theaters and had all the responsibility of his own business.

What Additional Guarantee of Protection Has Just Been Given to New England Coke Consumers?

WITH A FIRST PRIZE of $1,000

THERE is still time for you to enter this New England Coke contest and win one of the more than 600 prizes. Some simple idea—perhaps taking only a few minutes of your time, may win a first prize of $1,000 in cash. Anyone can enter this contest, there are no obligations and nothing to buy; no limitations at all—except that it is not open to professional writers or advertising men. Submit your ideas today.

What would you say about New England Coke if you did the advertising? What do you think the consumer of New England Coke should feel about this excellent domestic fuel with reference to the new guarantee of protection? Check these questions over with the family. Think them over. Then send in your opinion and remember that some thought—some idea—will win a first prize of $1,000 in cash. You can enter the contest today, and submit as many ideas as you want. Read the rules carefully.

Today's Big News Today in American

Readers of Boston's evening newspapers have their choice between reading TODAY'S big news today, in the Evening American, or of getting the news 12 to 24 hours later in the morning papers.

The many thousands of readers of the late afternoon "Peach" editions of the Evening American receive each day practically an EXCLUSIVE FRONT PAGE and many brief interesting and important exclusive news stories and features on other pages. That is the reason the "Peach" is gaining at such a rapid rate today throughout Greater Boston.

People of Greater Boston can have ALL of today's BIG NEWS and big news pictures TODAY by insisting upon having a late "Peach" American. If they prefer, of course, to have their so-called news served to them as cold as a politician's handshake, they can read it when they take their morning paper away from home to read on the subway.

One glance at last night's Peach final tells the story. Two very interesting news stories are told in the headlines—both stories EXCLUSIVE in the American. And more than two columns of late news flashes on the same page—[illegible] EXCLUSIVE. [illegible] many EXCLUSIVE [illegible] on other pages. And of [illegible] sport news and racing results.

The Evening American [illegible] of 1931. [illegible] TODAY not yesterday.

It is a newspaper for the YOUNG in spirit and thought. It is a LIVELY newspaper for LIVELY people.

If you insist on a late "Peach" you'll get [illegible] today. You won't [illegible] a day and [illegible] to read [illegible] news. But you will find TODAY'S NEWS COMPLETE.

THIS IS LIFE

DEATH BUT ACCENTS HOW EDISON WITH MARVELS CHANGED MANKIND

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

CURIOUS HOW EDISON'S DEATH makes one feel one's age—as if something one had always taken for granted had gone out of the world and it suddenly became less a matter of course. The youngsters, the boys and girls of today, cannot possibly imagine how much the world they live in was the work of Edison and some of his contemporaries. Take, for instance, the world of their entertainment.

Our young people take for granted, say, a technically perfect talking picture, on a mammoth screen, perhaps all colored, or a perfect phonograph record, or such a magnificent radio broadcast of orchestral music as that of Stokowski's orchestra last week. Would they appreciate them more, I wonder, if they had seen the beginnings of that perfection?

I remember well the first exhibition of Edison's moving pictures that came to Worcester, Mass. Some time in 1896 or thereabout, I think it must have been. I wish our youngsters might have seen the entertainment it replaced, such an affair, for instance, as Alexander Black's stereopticon photo-play, "A Capital Courtship," a novelette read by an elocutionist and illustrated by posed photographs. Occasionally in artful dissolving views one saw cigarette smoke curling—or appearing to curl.

It Flickered But It Moved!

Then Mr. Edison's invention came for the first time to the "flicks." Was it the Bioscope, or the Vitagraph, or the Kinetoscope which we saw? I can't remember. I suspect there must have been a lecture to eke out the entertainment, because I can remember only a half dozen subjects. They were all very short, repeated over and over again. The first film story had not yet been made. The pictures must have been taken by daylight, or even by the old carbon lamp, for they were gray and spotty. They flickered and jiggled horribly. But—like Galileo's universe—they moved!

A succession of great waves breaking on the beach at Atlantic City—with an accompaniment of pebbles shaken on a drum head. A dancer or tight-rope walker with a parasol, doing a simple dance over and over. The figure was colored against a black background, each frame painted by hand, garish in color and uncertain in register. And a scene of human interest. A blacksmith shop. Two men pounding a shoe on a forge, one at the bellows. A man drinking out of a bottle. A fourth man passes before him wheeling a wagon tire. Over and over and over. Such were the feature pictures, the action and comedy, of 1896.

It must have been about the same winter that the smart entertainment at evening parties was the man who owned a phonograph — graphophone — gramophone — and rented it out. Not for dancing! One sat about and listened with open mouth. The machine sat on a high pedestal. It had a great horn like a monstrous morning-glory. There were also rubber tubes like a stethoscope, if you wanted to blast your ear drums.

But "Them Were the Days"

The music was engraved on little cylinders shaped like the old prickly music box barrel. I believe those cylinders are still manufactured for the folks up-country who own the old machines. I know of one, at a camp up in New Brunswick, that still goes as well as ever after a score of years and has all the new tunes on the old cylinders.

Every record began with a vocal announcement of the piece or recitation, ending with a sharply raucous "Ediso-on Rec-corrrd" and dreadful noises which ultimately became a tiny far away orchestra or a guttural human voice, also far away. The thing was full of static—but it talked!

Out of these came the latest Hollywood super-specials in color, million-dollar productions, with perfect photography and astonishing sound recording. As I say, I wish the youngsters of today who speak so casually of the banality of our American films compared with those they turn out in Germany or Russia could have seen them. They might have a little more respect for American inventiveness.

After all, it was that decade, that astonishing decade of the '90s, that we smile at as the "Gay Nineties" or the "Mauve Decade," that popularized nearly all the inventions that make the life of today essentially different from the life of 50 years ago. I do not mean that they were invented in the '90s. But they did begin to come into general use in that decade.

The electric light for street and home and theater. The telephone in the home and office. The electric trolley, replacing the old horse car with the extra horse that waited at the foot of the hill.

It's Almost Beyond Imagination

The typewriter as a commonplace in the offices of progressive business men, displacing the old letter book with its ink-blurred leaves of tissue paper, out of which has grown all the complex, time-saving machinery of modern business. The kinetoscope was the forerunner of the moving picture, and the graphophone was the predecessor of the talkie, as I have described them. And at the end of the decade came the electric storage battery vehicle, the Stanley Steamer, and finally, the gasoline buggy.

When Roosevelt left the presidency, a few years later, all these had become commonplaces. Civilization had begun to take on the appearance it wears today, and the habits of time and space and labor and entertainment, which had hardly changed in hundreds of years, gave way to our mental habits of today. In those days people were skeptical of these new inventions.

Today, as Walter Lippmann said the other day in the New York Herald-Tribune, the only people who are not absolutely certain of the future of television are the inventors themselves. To such an extent have these 30 years "sold" us on the infinite possibilities of applied science.

I am rather glad that I was a boy in the one decade which, more than any other in the history of the world, changed the immemorial habits of man. Even today the gulf is hard for youthful imagination to bridge. Soon it will be almost impossible. There are, after all, certain compensations in being an Antediluvian.

Earns Vacation

'LIQUOR SQUAD' IS DROPPED

Those "pesky" police headquarters reporters are at last willing to take Depty Supt. McDevitt's denials that a liquor squad exists. Because they learned today that it was abolished last night.

For weeks the squad, which officially was not, has been operating. For just as many weeks the deputy superintendent has been denying its existence.

At last a raid was made without a warrant and Commissioner Hultman, who also had been asking questions, decided to have an investigation made, with the result that the squad was abolished.

Hereafter there will be no special squad to investigate liquor complaints and make raids. Instead this work will be passed around.

The squad, which was not, and now is not, was composed of three groups, one under Sergt. William Harrow, who is considered one of the most capable officers in the department, another under Sergt. Edward J. Keating and the third under Sergt. Justin McCarthy.

The other members were Patrolman Dennis Hargadan, Carney, Conaty, Sances, Janikas, Timkofsky, O'Reilly and DiNatale.

PARENTS LEAP WITH 2 IN FIRE

Clutching their two small boys, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Noble of Haw[illegible] st., Saugus, leaped out of a first floor window of their home early today after they awoke to find the home ablaze.

The children, Roger, four, and Robert, 2½, were cared for by a neighbor while the parents who rescued them turned to battle the fire until the arrival of apparatus.

The house was destroyed, together with a small amount of money in bills that had been saved by the couple.

DANGER SEEN IN RAZOR MAN'S METHODS

Director Pelham Regarded as a Menace, Says Fuller, a Member of the Board

The characterization as a "menace" of Thomas W. Pelham, a defendant in the $21,000,000 suit by minority stockholders against certain directors of the Gillette Safety Razor Co., featured the testimony today of Henry J. Fuller, co-defendant and fellow director.

Resuming the stand for the third successive day before Judge William M. Prest as master, Fuller said Pelham was a menace because of his methods and statements which he made.

"SHOULD BE REMOVED"

The characterization was brought out through the introduction of a letter by Atty. William G. Thompson of counsel for the complainants. The letter, written by Fuller to Frank J. Fahey, also a director, on Feb. 27, 1930, referring to a conference with personal counsel for King C. Gillette, ended with the statement:

"There is a menace which should be removed."

Asked who or what was the menace and why it should be removed, Fuller replied:

"Mr. Pelham, and the way he talked."

In answer to questions he said Pelham was a menace because of the way he was [illegible] goods and because of the business methods he used in selling goods.

ACCOUNTS QUESTIONED

"Was it also because he was making accounts receivable too large?"

"Primarily no."

"Was that part of the reason?"

"Yes," the witness replied.

He said another part of the reason was because Pelham was telling people what he was doing.

HURLEY GIVEN 11TH POSITION IN DRAWING

12 Are Listed in Race for Board; 92 Seeking Seats in Council

Maurice J. Tobin of Roxbury, candidate for school committee, today drew first place on the ballot in the drawing for places at City Hall.

Tobin's name will lead the field of 12 seeking the three places on the committee.

[illegible] J. Hurley, present chairman, and Dr. Joseph V. Lyons, a member, drew 11th and last positions respectively.

Following Tobin the other candidates in their order were Dr. Charles E. Mackey of South Boston, Henry A. Sasserno of West Roxbury, Timothy J. M[illegible] of South Boston, Edmund Burke of Back Bay, Frederick J. Deane of Back Bay, John F. Monahan of Dorchester, Henry J. Sullivan of South Boston, Edward J. Curley of Dorchester, and Dr. William B. Burns of Dorchester.

The names were drawn from a revolving box by Election Commissioner Daniel Rose. They were read as drawn by Chairman Peter F. Tague, repeated by William A. Mahoney, secretary, and recorded by Frederick Hopkins, deputy election commissioner.

After the school committee drawing, the selection of places in the ward contests for city council were drawn to place 92 candidates in the 22 wards.

RICHARD DIX WEDS CALIFORNIA GIRL

Sights and Sounds

Why do they always pick the sleek, sophisticated type of girl to sell jewelry? . . . We rambled in to one of the five and dime stores today and there large as life behind the jewelry counter was a girl who looked enough like "B" Lillie to make us pause and look a second time . . . And at another counter, where they were selling Halloween hats and party favors, the two salesgirls were wearing two enormous crepe paper hats . . . I wonder if they knew just how silly they looked? . . . And, another thing, why do men look and act so sheepish when they are in a department store? . . . You'd think there was a law prohibiting males from entering them the way they slink up and down the aisles . . . They look almost as guilty as I do these days when I pass those guys on Washington st. selling popular song sheets.

You should have seen the crowd in Jordan's clamoring to have a silhouette artist snip out their likenesses at so much per snip . . . It reminded me of the first time I saw Robert Woolsey, who has since become a comedy star in pictures, in Walter Woolf's "Lady In Ermine." . . . Woolsey was the comic in the show and he was cast as a silhouette artist . . . I wish I could remember the lyrics of that song, "Silhouettes," that he and Helen Shipman sang together.

Where the heck did I put that letter from the kind lady (I can't even remember her name) who wrote in and asked me if I'd like to have a kitten for Patty and Catherine? . . . I have hunted high and low through my desk to find the letter, but it must have been lost in the shuffle someplace . . . At any rate thank you very much for your thoughtfulness . . . Patty and Catherine have a partnership in a Boston terrier and I'm afraid that he might go temperamental on us if we tried to introduce a kitten into the family . . . You know how it is.

Wait till you hear the score of Romberg's newest operetta, "East Wind" . . . It's the best thing he's done since "Desert Song" . . . Just two weeks ago last Monday night Grace Hayes, then the feature attraction at the Cocoanut Grove, sat right behind me in the second row at the Shubert Theater at the Boston premiere of "Wonder Bar." Last night, after less than 24 hours of rehearsal, she stepped out on the stage of the same Shubert Theater playing one of the featured roles in Queenie Smith's new show, "The Little Racketeer" . . . In addition to getting up in the lines of her part, Grace also sang three songs that she had never seen or heard before Tuesday night . . . That, ladies and gentlemen, is what folks in show business call trouping.

GIRL LINKED IN DEATH TRIAL

A quarrel about a girl led to the fatal shooting of Simone Scalfani of the North End, for which Guiseppi Vitale of Medford is on trial in Suffolk Superior Court on a charge of second degree murder.

This was revealed from the witness stand today by Mrs. Mary Vitale of North st., North End, wife of the accused.

She said Scalfani told her he would "get" Vitale unless the latter kept away from a certain girl.

"Scalfani told me that my husband had taken the girl's honor," she said.

As a result of the threats she said, her husband transferred his fishing boat to New Bedford. But he returned and according to defense witnesses was fired upon by Scalfani as he stood talking to a friend on Fleet st.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying a gun saying it was to shoot sharks tearing up his nets.

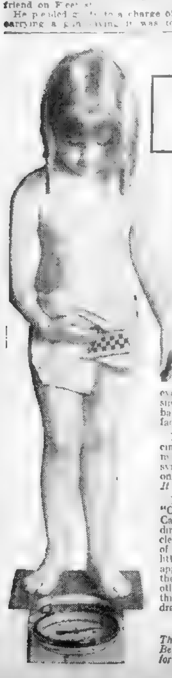
One defense witness testified Scalfani calmly bought a cigar, put it in his pocket then drew a gun and fired twice as Vitale appeared in the doorway of a store on Fleet st.

Wife Gaily Trumped an Ace at Bridge, Says Ma-in-Law

Ernest Grady of Adams st. Lynn, seeking custody of his two children at a hearing in probate court in Salem today, testified regarding a fondness of his wife, Florence, for liquor and parties.

He found her one night recently with a party of men and women friends celebrating on a railroad bridge in Lynn, he said.

His sister Margaret, testified that his wife picked up boy friends on her way home from dances. His mother Mrs. Anna Grady testified that one night, when the young wife had been drinking at a bridge party, she trumped her partner's ace.



To make Children

EAT

Don't force children to eat! The girl or boy who has no appetite has stasis—which means the child is sluggish. But cathartics have caused more constipation than they ever cured! The "California treatment" is best—just pure fig syrup. Try this for a few days then see how eagerly your youngster will eat.

How to Conquer Sluggishness

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for babies or older children than all the diets, fad foods, or tonics.

Nature has provided the only "medicine" you'll need to stir a child's colon muscles into proper action. California fig syrup. Pure, delicious, harmless. It acts on the lower colon—where the trouble is. It has no ill effects on the intestines.

Begin tonight, with this marvelous "California treatment." Any druggist has California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the clogged colon of every bit of poison and hard waste. Then just a little twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. Whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs.

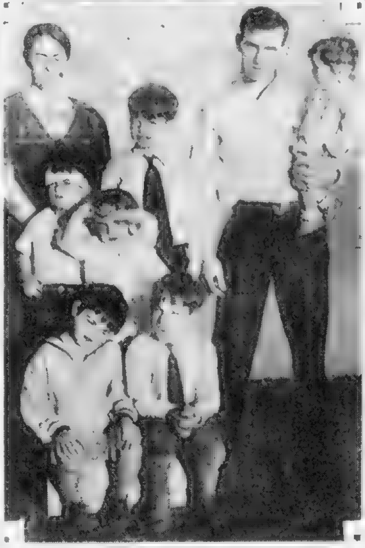
WARNING

There are dealers who practice substitution. Be sure to protect your child by looking for the name CALIFORNIA on the bottle.

WOMEN ASK HOOVER ANSWER ON NAVY YARD

'ECONOMY' RULES THEM

MRS. SULLIVAN ROBERT-DOROTHY JOHN



WILLIAM JAMES MR. SULLIVAN AND FRANCIS

Try to picture dozens of families like this, whose fathers work at the Boston Navy Yard. They know the meaning of the word "economy," but they can't understand Hoover economy. T. L. Sullivan, of Cleveland st., Malden, is a boilermaker at the Navy Yard, always has been and knows no other trade. He is the father of seven children. Only six are shown.

SMILES FEW AT NAVY YARD

Navy yard workers are made of the stuff that makes them look upon the bright side of things usually, but the intention on the part of the government to close the yard is causing them a great deal of worry.

A large part of the men employed at the Boston navy yard are men with large families. They cannot see any bright days ahead for their children if the yard is closed.

FATHER OF SEVEN

T. L. Sullivan, a boilermaker first class, has seven children, the oldest seven. He is only 28. He began work in the navy yard, served out his apprenticeship there, and has continued at his trade there for 12 years.

"I'm young and I can work," he said to a Boston Evening American reporter, "but where am I going to get work to provide for my wife and seven children if the yard is closed?

"My oldest is seven, my youngest three months. It takes steady work to keep them going, and it is hard to keep going at that when you have sickness. My little girl, Dorothy, is three. She was a victim of infantile paralysis, but I am glad to say she came out of it without any serious after effects. She is still bandaged up and we have to take her to the Children's Hospital once a week."

BABY THREE MONTHS

The youngest of the Sullivan family, three months old, is Mary and she was sound asleep when the American photographer called to take a picture of the family.

There are plenty of men employed in the various shops at the Navy Yard who have families of eight, ten or twelve children. One of these started work there in 1900, left the yard in 1914, returned to his job when the United States entered the World War in 1917 and has been there ever since. This man is in charge of one of the shops and has 14 children. He was the father of 15, but the oldest died last May.

"Of course," said he, "two or three of my children are old enough to take care of themselves, but I still have several that are entirely dependent upon what I earn here in the Navy Yard."

Beverly Lawyer Is Freed in Auto Case

Charged with driving so as to endanger the public, Atty. Joseph Silverio of Beverly, summoned nine witnesses to his defense in Lynn court today and was freed of the charge.

Silverio was summoned on complaint of Leonard F. May of Nashua, N. H., who claimed Silverio's car struck his auto September 10 on Buchanan Bridge, near the Lynn-Salem line.

BURIALS APART IN DEATH PACT

Funeral services for Rufus L. Stacey, who was found dead with his secret bride in an automobile in Danvers, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at his late residence, 44 Washington st., Marblehead.

The body of his bride, who was Ada Melon, student nurse at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital has been sent to Warren, Me., where her mother lives.

Rev. R. N. Granby, pastor of the Marblehead Episcopal Church, will conduct the services for Stacey and burial will be at Waterside Cemetery, Marblehead.

The death of the couple remains a mystery, but the police now believe that Stacey planned suicide, as he is said to have done so twice before.

Arlington Woman Hurt in 30-Foot Fall

Miss Elizabeth M. Gillis, 48, of 73 Windsor st., East Arlington was seriously injured today when she fell 30 feet to the ground from a second floor rear porch of her home.

She was taken to Symmes Arlington Hospital suffering from probable internal injuries. According to police, the porch railing gave away as Miss Gillis leaned against it.

So. Weymouth Man Killed by Monoxide

Walter L. Bates, 66, retired shoe manufacturer and former town official was found dead today in a garage near his home on Union st., South Weymouth, a victim of monoxide poisoning. Medical Examiner Robert M. Ryan pronounced death accidental.

The body was found by Henry Lawler, in whose garage Bates kept his car.

How Do Women in the Movies Manage?

Making a picture means weeks of work without a pause. The star can't stop because she's "indisposed." The "Time of Month" does not excuse her. If you know some woman who is in pictures she will tell you how Hollywood women manage. Try to find even an "extra" girl who doesn't carry Midol with her!

Midol was a marvelous discovery. It isn't harmful. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes—ends all pain or discomfort for hours at a stretch! Just ask for Midol at any drug store.

WILL KEEP UP FIGHT TO GET AT TRUTH

Liggett's Statement Received With Pleasure, but Official Word Is Wanted

Despite the assurance of Louis K. Liggett, Republican state committeeman, following a conference with President Hoover, that Boston navy yard will not be closed, the women of Greater Boston today joined the fight to keep in operation the local naval station that has been functioning 131 years.

The daughters, wives and mothers of the 2000 employes of the yard supported by public-spirited women throughout the state and business interests seem unanimous in the opinion that the agitation should be continued until direct word is received from President Hoover or Secretary of the Navy Adams that Boston navy yard will not be abandoned as a result of the proposed naval budget cut.

The Massachusetts Women's Home Safety League has called a mass meeting which will be held at Parkman bandstand on Boston Common next Sunday, from 2 until 5 p. m.

Mrs. Mary Gallagher, the president, will preside. Mayor Curley will head a list of prominent speakers. Special invitations have been sent to every member of Congress from the Bay State.

STATEMENT BY WORKERS

Mrs. Gallagher said 300 women of the league would circulate among the crowd Sunday with petitions protesting the closing of Boston Navy Yard.

The women of the League have already sent individual letters of protest to President Hoover.

The fact that employes of the yard and their families and friends were not wholly satisfied with the announcement of Mr. Liggett was revealed in a statement issued today by the Workers' Council of the Yard to every employe, which reads:

"This morning's papers expressed the opinion of Louis K. Liggett, Republican national committeeman, relative to the situation of Boston Navy Yard.

"The Workers' Council has the highest respect for the opinion and the assistance that can be given the future of the yard by Mr. Liggett.

"The newspapers also cite items submitted in the Navy Department budget concerning navy yard bands and the U. S. Constitution, which were struck from the recommendations by the President of the United States.

"The items recommending abandonment of this yard still prevails. Your course of action is clear. Do not cease your activities in the slightest degree. Fill out this petition. Keep your organization and your friends active.

"(Signed)

"WORKERS' COUNCIL."

LIGGETT STANDS PAT

Mr. Liggett, who was in New York today, was interviewed over the telephone by the Boston Evening American.

Asked if he would amplify the announcement accredited to him in Washington, he said:

"I have nothing to add."

"Do you feel satisfied in your own mind, Mr. Liggett, that Boston navy yard will not be closed?" he was asked.

"If I thought Boston navy yard was going to be closed I wouldn't have left Washington. I would still be there."

"Can you tell the people of Boston what President Hoover said to you, or what transpired at the conference which gave you that assurance?"

"I don't care to go into that. It is sufficient to say that the morning announcement in the press that I said the Boston yard would not be closed was correct.

President Henry I. Harriman today invited the following to serve with him on the committee that is to confer with President Hoover and Secretary Adams of the Navy Department to avert the closing of the navy yard.

Governor Joseph B. Ely, Senator David I. Walsh, Mayor James M. Curley, Congressmen John J. Douglass, Edith Nourse Rogers, Charles L. Underhill, State Commander Steven C. Garrity of the American Legion, Richard S. Teeling, president of the Charlestown Business Men's Association, and John F. Cantwell, president of the Bunker Hill Lodge, I. A. of M., representing the navy yard workers.

ADAMS IS QUESTIONED

President Harriman said:

"In view of the statement in the morning press to the effect that assurances have come from the White House that the Boston Navy Yard will not be closed, I have wired Secretary Adams for confirmation of this report.

"If official assurance is received that the Navy Yard will not be closed it can be assumed that the object of the chamber's protest meeting has been achieved and that it will be unnecessary for this committee to make a personal appeal to Washington authorities.

Attention:-The Editor

Gentlemen:-

The Association for Maintenance of the Boston Navy Yard, Inc., through its executive officers, wants you to know how much it appreciates the splendid service you have been rendering in the matter of calling to public attention the merits of the Boston Navy Yard.

You are assisting most generously in arousing the business men of metropolitan Boston and New England, as well as all citizens, to the importance of retaining a governmental agency that affects the social welfare and business interests of thousands of its people.

Please be assured of our most sincere appreciation of everything you are doing.

Cordially yours

MAN IS RESCUED FROM HARBOR

Robert Butler, 56, of 160 Broadway, Chelsea, was rescued from drowning early today after he missed his footing on Meridian st. bridge in Chelsea and plunged into the harbor.

William J. Condon and William J. Brennan, bridge tenders, were attracted by Butler's cries and put out in a boat.

After treatment for immersion at Chelsea Memorial Hospital, Butler was sent home. He said he was walking home from East Boston when he missed his footing on the bridge.

Way to Get At a Cold Is Through the Bowels

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice in case of colds is a mild laxative like cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens bowel muscles. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascarets.

Remember this when you catch cold: whenever breath is bad; tongue coated; or you're headachy, bilious, constipated.

Why resort to harsher things when Cascarets activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime?

Free Samples At Druggists Of Two New Vick Products

Every User of Vicks VapoRub Entitled to a Free Trial of Its New Allies—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops and Vicks Medicated Cough Drops.

INTRODUCES NEW IDEA

Discovery Makes Possible New Vick Plan of Better Home-Control of Colds

TO REDUCE "COLDS-TAX"

Following years of research on the problem of colds and their increasing cost, Vick Chemists announce a new discovery—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea in preventing colds, it is a perfect ally to Vicks VapoRub, the modern and better method of treating colds. Together, they make possible the new Vick Plan of better Control of Colds in the home—and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax" of time, money and discomfort.

Here is the plan.

1.—Before a Cold Starts

On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms — sudden temperature changes — wet and cold)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Strikes

Use the convenient Vicks Drops during the day—anytime, any place—as often as needed for comfort and relief. At bedtime, rub Vicks VapoRub well over the throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This Vick Plan gives you a full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, you will like another new Vick product — Vicks Cough Drops — actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks Vapo-Rub.)

Trial Packages Free

In order that every user of Vicks VapoRub may try the two new Vick products now being introduced, a supply of free trial packages of each has been sent to every druggist in the United States. Go to your druggist today and ask for yours. If, by any chance his supply is exhausted send us the top of a Vicks VapoRub carton—or coupon from the VapoRub directions folder—and we will mail free samples direct to you, together with a folder on the new Vick Plan for Control of Colds in the home. Address Vick Chemical Co., 1001 Milton St., Greensboro, N. C.

ELY IN PARLEYS INDICATES PLAN TO END LAWRENCE STRIKE

SEEKS TO HALT PROBE BILL IN LEGISLATURE

Delegation From Mill City Told Peace May Be Made in Few Days

Gov. E[illegible] conferred with two committees today about the strike of [illegible] workers and indicated he had a plan of settlement in mind which may end the wage-cut dispute within a few days.

Lawrence police this morning drove [illegible] boys and g[illegible] from picket lines in front of the Wood and Ayer Mills on Merrimack st.

These children had been parading daily with placards announcing their membership in the Young Pioneer movement of the Communist party, but police had not bothered with them. The children were ordered home today and their placards were seized.

Robert L. Bakeman, former mayor of Peabody and also for[illegible] for Boston to seek an injunction in Superior court here, restraining city officials from barring radicals from Lawrence north common.

The first committee to call on the Governor was composed of five legislators from Lawrence, Andover and Methuen. At the conclusion of an hour's t[illegible] with the Governor, Rep. M[illegible] A. Jordan, senior member, said:

"The Governor requested us to withhold action on a resolve filed by Rep. Thomas A. Lane for appointment of a commission of five unpaid members to study wages, conditions, profits and losses of the Lawrence mills.

"He requested us to withhold action until after this week-end, in the hope that some settlement may be effected before then."

The members of the Legislature had contemplated getting their colleagues to admit the resolve at the present special session for immediate action.

They had also hoped to induce Governor Ely to send a special message to the Legislature right away to ask some such action in connection with the Lawrence strike.

The Lawrence citizens' committee composed of businessmen, lawyers, priests and ministers, next went into conference with Gov. Ely. Before this conference began, the committee chairman, Mayor Michael A. Landers of Lawrence, said:

"We are hopeful that the Governor will have some solution."

LOUELLA JOINS BOOSTERS OF SHARKEY

Famous Movie Editor Sees the Boston Fighter as Next Champion of World

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright by Universal Service [illegible]

Boston hasn't any motion picture stars, but it has Jack Sharkey, who one day may be heavyweight champion of the world. Two weeks ago Sharkey was [illegible] another fighter. Today he is a potential world champion. Since he won an easy victory over the giant Primo Carnera, he is looked upon as the possible victor of Max Schmeling, present world champion. And Mr. Sharkey wants to fight Mr. Schmeling.

In fact, he is going to insist upon a match with the German fighter. He told me so himself, although my conversation with him was mostly on motion picture subjects. He came to call on me at my hotel, a well groomed figure with a flower in his buttonhole, put there by Mrs. Sharkey, who figures every five minutes in his conversation.

GETS STAGE FRIGHT

Jack has had an offer to make a movie. Universal wants him to star in a short and illustrate the progress of prize fighting. He is asked to compare the John L. Sullivan days with the present era of systematic training and dieting.

"I get stage fright," he confided. "You know I was offered $2500 a week to appear on the stage and I refused. Now look at me. I couldn't be a motion picture star, could I?"

I looked. I saw a young man with one cauliflower ear, but whose smile is 100 per cent. In fact he is better looking than Wallace Beery, who is his favorite motion picture star.

I had heard that Jack Sharkey was shy with newspaper folk. He was charming with me. He grinned when he said he liked Norma Shearer because she [illegible] like Mrs. Sharkey.

LIVES FOR FAMILY

To him Mrs. Sharkey is just as attractive as Miss Shearer.

Jack Sharkey's devotion to his wife and three children is one thing I like. It's not affectation. He really lives for his little family. The best compliment I ever received was Sharkey's statement:

"Who are your favorites?" I asked him.

"I like Marion Davies," he said. "She seems to be such a real person. We always go to see her pictures."

Ona Munson is another [illegible] he thinks is okay, but [illegible] he doesn't share the popular opinion of Greta Garbo.

"I am interested," he said, "in the reports that she stays at home and minds her own business. She is a good actress, but I like Marion Davies and Norma Shearer much better. I don't care for the mysterious type much, myself."

DRAWING OUT THE SMILE

"He may have a cauliflower ear, but he's got a smile that's 100 per cent." That is Jack Sharkey, in the opinion of Louella O. Parsons, moving picture editor for the Boston Evening American. She was talking about Boston's world champion fighter going into the movies. "And I hope he does," she added as she hustled out to a train. (Staff photo.)

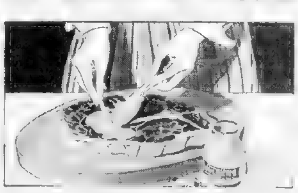
The Real way to broil a steak



"That's the finest-flavored steak you ever cooked!" your husband will exclaim when you serve him Steak a la Gulden. Just spread each side, before cooking, with a layer of Gulden's Prepared Mustard. Then broil. Gulden's is the ideal, easy-to-use seasoning for all meats, for sauces, gravies and left-over dishes. Its appetizing flavor spreads through the food as it cooks, enriching the natural goodness.

Venice Gets Angry at a Kiss

[illegible]

[illegible]

"If you're so fond of Bacchus," she laughed, "you can have [illegible] with me before [illegible] still another with some [illegible]"

[illegible]

"Why did you do that?" she [illegible]. Her cheeks were flaming. She put her palms against them as though to ease their burning.

"What did you want?" he asked, his eyes twinkling gayly, no [illegible] in his tone. "You seemed to be persisting about something."

"Thank you," stuttered Venice bitterly and turned away.

[illegible]

"How about a fourth at bridge, Venice?" Philip Manning at her elbow. She gave a little start, then forced herself to smile quickly into his nice, pink and white face.

[illegible]

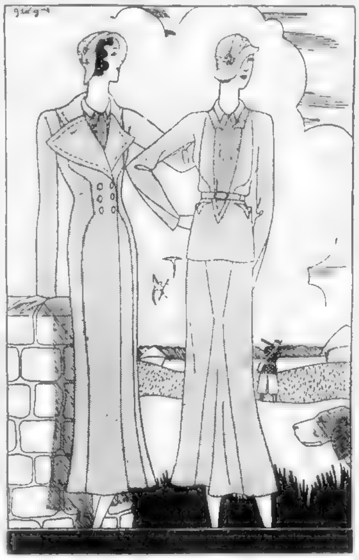
Jane Regny Hunting Coat

SKETCHED IN PARIS



Suggestive of the fall hunting season is the name of the Jane Regny coat sketched herewith, for it is indicated on the program of the collection as "Forestiere."

With the coat is worn a skirt and jumper of the same material, with a tucked lingerie blouse in a deep ivory shade. Circular cut godets set in as vertical panels at the center front and back give width to the skirt.

Is Standard of Living a Dream?

Elsie Robinson

THIS high standard of living" we Americans boast about . . . I never can decide whether it's the peak point of human achievement or just a bad pipe dream.

Whatever it is, it certainly has raised Cain with our affairs. For the last 10 years we've been living high, wide 'n' handsome. Acquiring things. Beautiful, expensive, convenient, powerful, amusing, exciting things. And the more things we acquired, the more things we wanted to acquire. Until the whole country went loco over things. Those who weren't buying them were making them.

Then something happened and we got Depression. And now we're a' belliakin. Some of us have good reason. Some of us are starving. But most of us aren't within a hundred miles of starving. We aren't even facing any actual hardship. We'll just have to live cheap and simple again, as our grandmas did—wear last year's suit, cut out the parties, wash our own dishes—put the famous High Standard of Living in cold storage for a while. But, to hear us yell, you'd think we were being murdered. For we're convinced that we are failures nationally and individually, unless we can keep up Our Front.

Do you think that's so? Do you think it's good or necessary for a big nation to base its culture on Things . . . to depend for its comfort and livelihood on Things?

Lately I've been ranching in a country where folks get along without Things . . . Scattered ranches in mighty wild mountain land. Poor families, mostly. Chances are that most of them haven't $50 in actual cash to winter through on. No sales this last season. Didn't pay to pick the apples or dig the potatoes, except for home use. Cattle in poor shape because of the dry spring. Pork bringing only [illegible] cents. Not an encouraging prospect—but they're not grumbling. Long as you have a roof over your head, enough grain and a box of shells, what more do you want?

Not very exciting. No city lights. No movies. Nothing but a shabby room and a saggy bed, with the rain pattering on a patched old roof. Bet you, stranger, you'd get the jitters if you had to stand a winter of that. But they stand it—stand years of it with never a touch of the High Standard of Living, unless maybe it's the party line or a fifth-hand Ford. Of course they'd like the trimmings—if they could have 'em. And they'd become just as excited and extravagant, stuck-up and discontented as the rest of us. But suppose they had Things . . . WOULD THEY GET MORE OUT OF LIFE THAN THEY'RE GETTING NOW?

Ignorant? Lazy? Not ambitious? Maybe they're all that. But they've leisure. And they've contentment and health—something that plenty of us lack under the H. S. O. L.

The city man's, whose life depends on having Things or making them—

The country man's, who gets along without Things, and gets his makin's out of the soil and himself—

WHO HAS THE BEST OF IT?

Daily True Story

Saved in Time

CIGARETTES LITTERED the studio. There were glasses on the table, on the bookcases, on the floor. Moofy, aristocrat of cats, even though she did live in the Village, sniffed at a leftover sandwich and stalked [illegible]

Katrina slept on. She was [illegible] when Mrs. Van Wyck [illegible] her dragging [illegible]. It was [illegible] grandmother had stepped [illegible] Katrina [illegible] with [illegible] Mrs. Van Wyck was [illegible]

"W[illegible]" she [illegible]. Then she [illegible] penetrated Katrina's [illegible] head and caused her to roll over and yawn.

"Hello?" she called. "Why, grandmother, of all persons. What an unearthly hour to be up and around."

"It is 3 p. m.," grandmother said stiffly. "Katrina, when are you going to stop this foolish existence? You'll ruin your health leading such a life. Cocktails, cigarettes, day after day. Why, when I was a girl, it was a treat to have a sip of port or sherry at dinner."

"Oh, Granny, you're so old fashioned!"

"And glad to be so, young lady, the more I see of the younger generation. What does Peter think of all this?"

"Peter's an angel. He likes to be gay himself. We aren't young more than once, grandmother. I like living here in the Village. I like having my freedom. I'll marry and settle down in time, but right now I like my own place, and just Moofy to share it with me."

POKED AT HAT

Mrs. Van Wyck sighed, poked at her Queen Mary hat, sighed again. "I can't understand it, Katrina. Here I am, living all alone in that big house . . . Why, it would be ideal for you and Peter, if you'd only marry now. I wouldn't be in the way, either," she added generously.

Her granddaughter blew her a kiss. "You're sweet," said Katrina. "But I do want to live for awhile yet, and so does Peter. He's here now. Don't you want to see Peter?"

"No," said Peter Blodgett, slipping by the door with a Villager's best drop-in-manner. "Not after last night. What a crowd, kat. Bores, all of them. Smoke, drink and talk—about nothing—that's all they do. No, I don't want to live."

He noticed Mrs. Van Wyck for the first time, bowed to her and kissed her hand, a gesture of other days that never failed to [illegible] her.

"Well, you two get together," Katrina suggested stiffly. "You are agreed that I lead a worthless life. You like it, too, you know you do, Peter. You're just showing off now. And as for granny, well, I think it would do her good to pep up her existence a bit. Why don't you, granny?"

A peculiar light flashed into the elder woman's eyes. They were still pretty eyes; she was still an attractive woman, even if her dresses were of another period.

"You know," she said, "I may follow your advice."

A week later Katrina and Peter made their usual visit to the Green Cat, rizest of Village night clubs. Peter was tired and he showed it, but Katrina was as gay as though she had tumbled out of bed only a few hours before, which was just what she had done.

She [illegible] and [illegible]

"Peter," she choked, "do you see what I see? Granny dancing. And will you look at her gown!"

[illegible]

"At her age!" exclaimed Katrina. "Peter, please bring her to our table. She must be [illegible], something must have happened to her mind."

[illegible] Mrs. Van Wyck [illegible]

[illegible] several weeks [illegible] she turned [illegible]

"Will you marry me tomorrow?"

"Why, I think so. Let me see what else I have on for the day."

"No, seriously. I think we should marry now and go to Granny's. I think she needs—well, a little watching. She has too much freedom. We'll just lead simple lives and maybe she will calm down. Anyway, I'm tired of running around."

[illegible] Katrina wonders [illegible]

"It is lucky we married when we did, for there was no telling what grandmother might have done," says Katrina to Peter.

And Mrs. Van Wyck [illegible] and Peter [illegible] together and she says:

Barry the Great. ↕ Pigskin Survey.

Texas Longhorns. Odds and Ends.

NOTRE DAME HAS 15 PLAYS, USES 6 OR 7

Barry Wood . . . Greatest of The Great . . . If he only shows half the stuff the rest of the season he showed against the Army he'll be All American quarter as sure as you're born . . . Why doesn't the Harvard Pink toss a few bouquets at the man who really is doing something for Harvard instead of throwing [illegible] at the colleges who answered the call of the President of the United States and Sweet Charity? . . . Harvard men are just as American, patriotic, democratic, charitable as anyone [illegible] the Harvard Pink's editorial on the Army carries such an impression of [illegible] bery and [illegible] as to make John Harvard's [illegible] place seem to be on Piccadilly . . . Back to Barry Wood . . . Texas is bringing a counterpart of him to the Stadium [illegible] . . . It is quarterback Wilson "Bull" Elkins, who, like Barry, is an honor student, a Phi Beta Kappa, and an all around athlete [illegible] his letters in football, track and basketball.

The only other Texas team that ever came North left Austin with the thermometer at 90 to strike Chicago a raging blizzard and a raging Eckersall. Chicago was buried under snow and Texas buried under a 52 to 0 score . . . That was in 1902 . . . Texas came North that year, rigged out with sombreros and chaps and six-shooters stuck in their belts . . . The Chicago papers had them quartered in the stockyards and living on red blood . . . Texas has a real team this year . . . The Longhorns come to the Stadium with a record of only two defeats in two years . . . Both by Rice Institute . . . Koy and Stafford were last year's unanimous choices for the All Southwestern team . . . Blanton is a great booter . . . He is an All Southwest tackle.

The advance sale for the Thompson-Brouillard championship scrap is bigger than the one the Garden had for Carnera Maloney . . . That means a sell out for advance sales in all branches of sport are nothing to what they were a few years ago . . . Major Fleming of West Point says the advance sale for the Army-Michigan State was insignificant and the sale the day of the game the biggest on record . . . He points out the last minute Harvard-Army sale filled Michie Stadium . . . He says, despite the depression, that the Army-Navy and Army-Notre Dame games will be sell-outs, but looks for the last minute sale to turn the trick, despite the fact tickets will be put on public sale for the first time on record.

Harvard, Notre Dame, Northwestern, Columbia, Cornell, Colgate, N. Y. U., Fordham, Penn and Brown head the [illegible] college elevens who have not been beaten this year . . . The unscored upon teams are Colgate, Notre Dame, Davis Elkins, Pittsburgh, Tennessee and Tulane . . . Unbeaten and unscored upon, Colgate meets unbeaten N. Y. U. on Saturday; Notre Dame faces unscored upon Pittsburgh, and Northwestern takes on tough Ohio State . . . Unscored upon Tulane meets Georgia Tech and unscored upon Davis-Elkins, with the high score record of 231 points, gets another apparent soft one in St. Francis . . . Besides the Harvard-Texas and B. C.-Marquette games, New England fans interestedly await Saturday's Yale-Army, Navy-Princeton, Columbia-Williams, Holy Cross-Rutgers, Dartmouth-Lebanon Valley, Amherst-Wesleyan, Bates-Maine, New Hampshire-Vermont, Brown-Lehigh, Fordham-Drake, Syracuse-Penn State, Springfield-Middlebury, Tufts-Conn. Aggies and Worcester-Mass. Aggies games.

In a recent interview, "Hunk" Anderson, Knute Rockne's successor, said he had to walk eight miles to school when a kid and was up at 6:30 every morning delivering papers for $5 per month . . . Says George Gipp was his football hero and induced him to come to Notre Dame . . . That in his first coaching year he coached Notre Dame for nothing and in 1923 received a salary of $500 . . . In his first coaching year worked on an engineering job from 7 to 3 and every Sunday played with the Chicago Bears . . . That Notre Dame this year has the biggest line in years . . . That Notre Dame has 15 plays but generally uses no more than 6 or 7 per game . . . Says the average coach puts too much stress on scrimmaging.

Do you hunters want to know how hunting conditions are in Maine? . . . Write to V. B. Klefbeck, director of publicity, Maine Development Commission, State House, Augusta, Me. . . . He will tell you just where the deer, bear, partridge, woodcock, duck, coot, geese are the most plentiful . . . What the conditions are, bare ground, thick brush, still, noisy, etc., how the roads are into the camps and where they are situated, etc. . . . Maine's force of 102 game wardens now makes weekly reports to Augusta and these reports are yours for the asking . . . The hunting territories have been divided into two zones, North and South, and into 13 divisions, lettered from A to M . . . Latest reports show that deer are plentiful in 10 of the 13 divisions . . . That bear are plentiful in Penobscot, Hancock, Piscataquis, Somerset and Franklin counties and in the eastern portion of Washington County.

Two special trains will bring Brouillard rooters from Danielson, Norwich, Willimantic, Taftsville and other Connecticut towns on Friday . . . Frank Barber has hired an accordion band for the occasion and the Nutmeg Staters are going to make it a joy-ride . . . Two sons of former Brown coaches are enrolled at Brown . . . They are Eddie Robinson, Jr., and Elwin Gammons, "Daff" Gammons' boy . . . Both Harry Hillman and Harvey Cohn, Dartmouth coaches, have their own boys preparing for Dartmouth . . . If Mussolini wants to recruit a team, how about Cavalieri and Collucci of Holy Cross, Rotelli and Bunomianno of Brown and Viviano and Ferraro of Cornell? . . . Steve Banas, out of the game with a broken finger, is the eighth fullback Notre Dame has lost since Joe Savoldi withdrew from the team the week of last year's Northwestern game . . . Looks as if the position was jinxed at South Bend.

The little team of amateur boxers Uncle Sam sent on a junketing expedition to Germany isn't the best team that could be sent, but nevertheless the victory of the German boxers, 5 bouts to 3, offers food for thought, as they say in the best sellers . . . Europe is coming fast in the cauliflower industry . . . Jim Crowley, of the Four Horsemen, says scrimmages are the bunk . . . Lou Little says N. Y. U.'s scrimmaging with Columbia greatly helped the Blue and White vanquish Dartmouth . . . Harry Harper, who you used to see curling 'em over for Senators and Yanks at Fenway Park, is running for state senator in New Jersey . . . The tip is out that old Charlie Comiskey may sell the White Sox to George Getz . . . Getz is the millionaire Chicago coal operator who backed Tex Rickard in the second Dempsey-Tunney fight.

Frank Downs Near Death; Nephew, Friends Sought

Frank Downs, well known betting commissioner, suffered a heart attack at Sturbridge at the light harness meeting yesterday, and is at the Harrington Hospital. His condition is serious, and physicians fear that he will not live 24 hours.

He has a nephew who lived with him in Belmont, or some other suburb of this city. That gentleman and other friends are asked to communicate with the Harrington Hospital or Proprietor Murphy of the Columbia Hotel, Sturbridge.

Downs is a member of Boston Lodge of Elks, and has been an Elk for 40 years or more.

[illegible] the squad settled down [illegible] in the final Nickerson Field [illegible] before the game. [illegible] Coach Mahaney and [illegible] became engaged in an argument.

Mahaney told his varsity guard a few things and wound up with the statement that he was fired and that he was no longer desired on the B. U. football squad.

This move caused Ernie Sherman, a friend of Fisher's, to quit the squad. Sherman has been one of the leading B. U. halfbacks.

The reason for the newest of B. U. [illegible] could not be learned, [illegible] was said that Fisher besided the fact that Sherman was not picked to make the trip. [illegible] B. U. squad reduced to 19 [illegible] dismissal of Fisher will board a train at Riverside at 3:50 p. m. today.

MR. BOSTON

—By JACK CONWAY—

I found Jack Sharkey having a [illegible] talk with Ernie Schaaf, New England heavyweight champion, who takes on Napoleon Jack Dorval at the Boston Garden on November 10. Schaaf had just completed a workout at [illegible]

"I think," said Sharkey, "that Dorval is the best opponent you have been sent against since you went under the management of Johnny Buckley and myself. Campolo was a big, low fellow and it was possible for you to get a good belt at him. Baer was also comparatively slow.

Mr. Boston

"Griffiths was faster than Campolo or Baer, but he [illegible] match good with Dorval. The latter is shifty, has a good left hand, and is an experienced ring campaigner. I figure, Ernie, you'll take Dorval like you did Campolo, Baer and Griffiths, but it is a tougher fight than you've had yet.

"I'm going to be on the job with you during your training period, and feel you will continue your march towards the top of the heavyweight division."

Schaaf listened attentively to what Sharkey had to say.

"I know Dorval is a good fighter," said Ernie simply. "I'm going to get into the best possible condition, and will toss enough punches to bring Jack down.

"I am glad my return match with Tuffy Griffiths has been set back until after my meeting with Dorval. I want to be at my best for Dorval. He's a shifty fellow and I'll have to step on the gas to nail him on the chin. But I'll catch up with him."

Sherry Signs Up

Jack Sherry, who doesn't care who he wrestles, has signed with Matchmaker Alex MacLean, representing [illegible] to appear on the same card with Henri Deglane and Jim Browning at the Arena a week from tonight.

Sherry has [illegible] MacLean to [illegible] opponent. Sherry takes his mat [illegible] rough and he don't care who they happen to be.

Ed George, former world's champion, will also show at the Arena. It will be Ed's first appearance here since he lost to DeGlane at the Crosscup-Pishon Post's show at [illegible] Field last summer.

Best Two Out of Three

[illegible] stages the wrestling shows at the Boston Garden [illegible] a page from Paul Bowser [illegible] I understand that it has been agreed that best two falls out of three will decide the winner [illegible] between Jim Londos and Pat O'Shocker on November 3.

O'Shocker feels he has a better chance of defeating Londos under such conditions. In previous Garden shows one fall has decided the winner. [illegible] one fall endings would prove more popular, but he has apparently changed his views.

Personally I believe O'Shocker has taken the correct stand. A fluke often decides one fall matches, but the better man usually wins the tussle is decided by the best two falls out of three.

TITLE SERIES FOR N. Y.

N. Y. U., LIONS, RAMS COULD DRAW FANS

By BILL GRIMES

Three outstanding institutions of learning in New York city, Columbia, New York University and Fordham, within a few years probably will be engaging in annual round robins to determine the championship of Gotham and at the same time enrich the coffers of their respective athletic associations.

Down in [illegible] New York [illegible] a place in every branch of sport. These colleges can de[illegible] football combinations [illegible] careers in Gotham are [illegible].

Up to a few years ago Columbia was the big football attraction in New York. Then New York University decided that it would be to its advantage to be represented by a football eleven of better than average ability.

Chick Meehan was weaned from Syracuse University by a most generous offer from N. Y. U. Realizing that his retention at New York U. would depend upon the success of his elevens, the former Dean Academy and Orange quarterback went out and gathered a horde of gridsters to carry on for the Violet.

Within a comparatively short space of time N. Y. U. was very much in the football spotlight. Meehan began to produce winning elevens and N. Y. U. found itself becoming famous throughout the country.

Cav Signed to Offset Popularity of N. Y. U.

Taking a leaf from N. Y. U.'s book, Fordham secured Major Frank Cavanaugh, one of the best known coaches in the game. Presumably, Cav was taken over by Fordham to develop winning combinations on the gridiron, but in reality he was signed to a Fordham contract to offset the sudden popularity of N. Y. U.

For the past few years Meehan and Cavanaugh [illegible] have been going through various prep and high schools mostly in New England and Pennsylvania with fine tooth combs.

Many prep school stars who apparently have been headed for other colleges have suddenly shifted and matriculated in either Fordham or N. Y. U., until now the Rams and the Violet are two of the strongest elevens in the East.

From the first hour of practice [illegible] until whistle on the last [illegible] of the season football is [illegible] a business at Fordham and N. Y. U. [illegible] possesses a strong reputation it has difficulty getting on either the Fordham or N. Y. U. schedules. Of course both colleges book "breathers" but for their main attractions demand opponents who have accomplished [illegible] feats in the football world.

Crusaders Dropped From Fordham Slate

Fordham could not see Holy Cross as a money making attraction and the Crusaders were dropped from the Rams schedule.

Harry Stuhldreher tried to outsmart Chick Meehan a year ago by saving some of his stars for the N. Y. U. game with the result that Villanova was defeated the week before it was to play the Violets. Stuhldreher and Meehan had come to an agreement that Villanova was to run up big scores on its early season opponents in order to build up the N. Y. U. game.

The Villanova setback affected the "gate" and N. Y. U. paid off the Pennsylvania college, despite the fact that the contract had two years to run, and broke off relations.

Even before Major Cavanaugh went to Fordham, Columbia sought the services of many famous coaches, hoping to put the Lion in the front ranks of the college football world.

The Morningside Heights authorities even went so far as to dicker with the late Knute Rockne, whom they offered a fabulous salary to take over the berth left vacant by the death of P. D. Haughton.

They also went after Dick Hanley, present Northwestern University mentor, and finally took on Charlie Crowley. In spite of the fact that Charlie Crowley has few peers as a football strategist, he was unable to get over at Columbia, and he was succeeded by Lou Little.

Frank Cavanaugh, Chick Meehan and Lou Little do not ask odds from any coaches. They know their stuff, from the selection of future stars for their respective institutions to the best defense against forward passes.

Naturally it will require a couple of seasons for Little to get Columbia clicking but once the Lions begin to win consistently, Fordham, New York University and Columbia will enter into a three-cornered agreement and will battle annually for the championship of Gotham which will be, in the eyes of Broadway, the championship of the country, and therefore will be one of the greatest money making programs in football.

Up and over, with more blue ribbons in sight. Virginia Tolman, of Cohasset, guided Hobo over in this leap as she prepared for the Boston Horse Show, at the Garden next week. Miss Tolman will go after horsemanship and girls under 16 years honors. She is one of the foremost young horsewomen in the country. Watch her, in the Garden show!

It took two strong Brighton tacklers to stop Hankard, South Boston quarterback, after that the latter reeled off a long gain at the Fens Stadium. Hankard's touchdown contributed to the Southie 19 0 conquest of Brighton. Hankard is one of the Boston school grid standouts. He wants "All" distinction.

The Daily Dozen

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Although Boston College and Harvard play their home football games in Boston, neither college is located in the city. That makes Boston University the city champions, even if they never win a game.

Simmons, Northeastern and Emerson College of oratory have no football teams.

The New York Boxing Commission refuses to allow Carnera and Paulino to fight in that state. Muldoon, the Iron Duke, says Primo must take on someone his own size. What? Fight Campolo every few weeks?

Muldoon believes that the only place for Jack-and-the-Bean Stalk acts are in fairy tales.

In the balloting for the most valuable player in the National League, John "Pepper" Martin, hero of the world series, received only honorable mention by the Baseball Writers of America. Most of the writers must have been born in Philadelphia.

A professor in the University of Minnesota medical school says football is so strenuous that many players suffer from heart trouble. But then, Minnesota is a co-ed school.

You don't have to play football to suffer from heart trouble.

Today at the Hawthorne track, work horses from the Chicago stock yards will run in special race. There will be no mutuels, but of course, there will be a little betting. A (s)cent on every nag.

There is a 43-year-old player on the Cleveland Indians professional football team. Forty-three years seems old for a football player, but before the days of reform, the Indians' player would still have a few more years of college football ahead of him.

In the old days, tramp athletes were the only genuine All-America players. They played on practically every college team in the country.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Recall what happened when numbers of states passed laws guaranteeing bank deposits. In effect, strong, well-managed institutions were ordered to bear the losses incurred by weak, poorly-managed—sometimes dishonestly managed—institutions. Such legislation was lauded by its misguided sponsors as idealistic, as in harmony with the golden rule.

Lo and behold, the very same Interstate Commerce Commission that now tells the strong roads they must pony up to help impecunious roads, recently urged Congress to abandon the whole "recapture" principle!

Having only recently urged the abolition of the strong-must-help-the-weak principle, they now propose exactly the same principle!

Cash Positions

A statistical review points out that companies following liberal reserve policies are not weakening [illegible] this year. For example, while Johns-Manville would show only about $1.25 a share earnings in 1931, the company sets aside reserves for depletion and depreciation equal to about $2.50 annually.

These reserves are cash which in theory may have to be spent in the future but which meanwhile [illegible]

SIMONDS SEES 1932 AS YEAR OF REVIVAL

By FRANK H. MELOON

President Alvan T. Simonds of the great Simonds Saw and Steel [illegible] President Simonds states:

"Economic factors indicate that 1932 will be a year of revival. Ford spending millions on branch assembly plants which cannot show a profit unless production is pegged at a high figure, shows his confidence in the future even after nearly two years of extreme depression. Why should the great majority of those with less at stake lack his foresight and his backbone? Can they expect to succeed with uncorrected [illegible] and a wishbone in place of a backbone?"

Prices Are Higher in Big Bond Mart

New York, Oct. 22—Prices were generally higher in the big bond mart today, in moderate trading, although rail lines were mostly off a little. Liberty and U. S. Treasury Loans were quiet much of time but the upward trend in them was plain. Most foreign bonds were much less active than usual. Belgian 7s were an exception and touched par, a new recent high level, and a gain of 2 points.

Reactionary Trand Is Seen on Curb

New York, Oct. 22—Reactionary trend was seen on the curb today. Cities Service, which for the third successive month reported an improvement in earnings, was dull. American Gas & Electric lost over 3 points. Electric Bond & Share fell back over a point. Electric Power & Light warrants sold off about a point.

LIVE NEWS OF WALL STREET LEADERS

RAILROAD shares today were unsettled with respect to the "pooling" agreement suggested by the Interstate Commerce Commission [illegible] executives will consider the [illegible] at their Atlantic City conference and some light may be thrown on the matter later.

"Leak" in Report of I. C. C. Seen

W. S. Cousins, financial [illegible] stated today:

Central Down 7 From Tuesday's Best Price

New York Central today extended its recession of yesterday and sold off $7 a share from Tuesday's best price. A block of Baltimore & Ohio changed hands off over $2 from yesterday's close. Atchison was off around $4 a share on active offerings.

Laval's Arrival Fails to Stir Speculators

Arrival of Premier Laval of France failed to stir the speculative element in Wall Street to any hectic enthusiasm today, although there had been some buying in the expectation that it would. Speculators were disposed to assume a waiting attitude.

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the price structure, considering news and earnings rebuffs, has acted well. A quiet trading market, trending gradually higher, is desired. This will be the best tonic for the run-down morale of the public. A safe policy would seem to indicate the avoidance of shares on bulges and moderate accumulation on dips. On the Dow Jones industrial index the next important support level is apparently between 104-105.

STOCKS LOWER ON A LIGHT TURNOVER

New York, Oct. 22—Prominent shares were mostly lower on a light turnover in today's Wall St. dealings. There were setbacks of 1 to 4 points.

Transactions totaled 1,400,000 shares. The trend was lower most of the day and the closing tone was soft.

LACK OF BUYING

The market reflected lack of buying interest rather than important selling. Wall St. was preoccupied with possible developments at the gathering of railroad executives at Atlantic City and with the visit of Premier Laval for his conferences with President Hoover.

An effort to bid up the copper issues was soon abandoned, after such issues as Anaconda and Kennecott had gained a point or so, but there were several small net gains in this group at the finish.

Issues losing about 2 to 4 points included American Telephone, American Can, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Water Works, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Sante Fe, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, duPont, Westinghouse, North American and Sears Roebuck.

There was little inclination in Wall Street to believe that the railway executives, meeting in Atlantic City, could do other than accept that decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on freight rates.

ACTION BY RAILROADS

Much confusion of mind seemed to exist in rail circles, however, as to how the pooling arrangement to help weaker roads could be worked out, and reaching a solution may take time.

One big investment banking house today says:

"Executives of leading roads now earning bond interest are strongly opposed to accepting increased revenue that must be passed on to weaker companies. There is some belief that they may be forced to do so by pressure from insurance companies and banks but if so there is likelihood that stockholders would take the question to court where it would remain for an indefinite period.

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Co., world's largest distributor of anthracite, announced it would not increase prices to dealers. Thus, the company will absorb until further notice the higher transportation charges as a result of the increased freight rates granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

UNITED-CARR EARNINGS UP

United-Carr Fastener Corp. and subsidiaries of Cambridge report for the nine months ended September 30, 1931, consolidated net income of $103,976 after all charges, or 41 cents a share on the 250,000 no-par shares outstanding, against 19 cents per share in the like period of last year.

Balance sheet as of September 30 shows total current assets of $1,658,734 with current liabilities of $212,379, giving working capital of $1,446,255 and a ratio of 7.82 to 1.

Youngstown Steel Operations Higher

News from the steel industry offers some fresh hope that a belated seasonal upturn will result from automotive, railroad and structural requirements. Republic Steel Corp. has resumed operations of four furnaces which have been idle for a few days. This brings the aggregate rate of operations in the Youngstown area up 26 per cent of capacity, from 23.

Kresge Expected to Surpass Last Year

New York, Oct. 22—Earnings of the S. S. Kresge Co. for 1931 are expected to exceed those of 1930, when profits after taxes were $10,621,151, equivalent after deduction of preferred dividends to $1.90 a share on the common stock, says Pres. Charles B. Van Dusen.

Cotton Lower in New York Market

New York, Oct. 22—Cotton futures today finished 13 to 21 points lower. October, 6.50; December, 6.59-60; January, 6.69; March, 6.84; May, 7.03; July, 7.20-21. Spot, quiet; middling, 6.70.

Grains Are Easier in Chicago Market

Chicago, Oct. 22—Grains closed easier today. Final prices for wheat were ⅝ to ¾c lower, corn ⅜ to ½c down and oats ⅛ to ⅜c off. Rye yielded ½ to ¾c.

Amount Is Unfixed

Final determination of the amount of Massachusetts Investors Trust stock to be exchanged for the assets of United Securities Trust Associates has not yet been made.

Gain in Production of Gold Is Expected

More gold probably will be produced in the mines of the world this year than at any time since the record years of 1915 and 1916. A conservative estimate, according to Engineering and Mining Journal, places the 1931 output at 21,000,000 ounces, compared with 20,150,000 ounces in 1930.

"Not only is the actual volume of production by gold mines greater than at any time in the last 15 years," the publication states, "but the scale of profits is also greater. The depression that has spelled disaster to so many other industries has lowered production costs for the gold industry, which obtains a fixed price for its product."

Increase in production this year is shown largely in Canada, South Africa, Australia and one or two other countries. The United States stands third in estimated totals of fine ounces to be produced in 1931. Its production this year is estimated at 2,100,000 ounces, which compares with 2,100,395 ounces produced in 1930.

"The period of lowered costs," the mining publication comments, "has not yet lasted long enough to encourage much so-called 'marginal' production, that is, gold obtained from mines which formerly could not operate at a profit. New, large mines are contributing the increase, as well as some individual placer recovery from unemployed men working over old fields. But, if commodity prices remain at or near their present low levels for an additional year or two, a substantial output should be realized from marginal mines."

An outstanding fact about the gold industry, the mining paper adds, is that one district—the Witwatersrand in the Transvaal—produces 53 per cent of the world total output. Compared with the Transvaal, Canada is still a small producer, but the Dominion has been making such strides within the last 15 years that it is now the world's second largest gold producer and is increasing its output at the rate of 20 per cent or more annually.

In the United States, long so prominent in gold production, the industry has been fading into obscurity in recent years. Cripple Creek, Goldfield, Tonopah and other famous camps have seen their best days. New camps have not been found. Homestake and Alaska Juneau, plus the by-product output from base-metal mines, accounted for half the country's total in 1929.

Pennsy Adds Service

The Pennsylvania Railroad recently has increased its service to blind passengers. The barrier against dogs' traveling in passenger cars has been lifted, in certain instances, and dogs accompanying blind persons hereafter may share their master's accommodations. The road has placed certain restrictions on the matter, for it stipulates that only dogs which have passed rigid tests and for which travelling permits have been issued by an American foundation will be permitted to passenger accommodations. Such dogs, it is pointed out, are thoroughly trained, and always should be at their masters' sides.

THAT AMERICAN SWEET TOOTH

While the candy industry is not depression-proof, it has suffered relatively less than other lines of business, owing to the gigantic American sweet tooth. Per capita consumption of candy in this country is the largest in the world, totaling about 12 pounds a person annually, or 1,500,000,000 pounds total consumption. The industry encompasses investments of more than $300,000,000, according to Department of Commerce estimates, and engages the services of more than 250,000 people. Retail sales each year aggregate upward of $750,000,000. Although references to confectionery go back to about 2000 B. C., recent progress has far outstripped the methods of the ancients. Since 1900, sales have increased more than 600 per cent. The culmination of another vigorous country-wide sales campaign will result on October 17, which has been set as a special Candy Day.

PETROLEUM VERSUS KING COAL

The coal industry has suffered a great deal from oil competition in recent years and there are predictions how far oil will continue to supplant the black diamond as a fuel.

The most recent development in this feud of fuels is that coal men are experimenting on possibilities of entering petroleum's sphere of use. Diesel-engined automobiles and airplanes, using powdered coal as motive power, have been experimented with. While the idea of an automobile backing up to a coalyard for its motive power is bizarre, Gen. Brice P. Disque, director of the Anthracite Institute, promises that if there is a grain of sense to the suggestion he will find it.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

"Lissen, dearie, as a poet
I could never hope to brag,
At the same time, you can't kid me

(News Item.)

"RENO—Divorcees who come here with the intention of remaining in Nevada less than six weeks and 'getting by' with perjured testimony as to establishment of proper residence may be sent to jail."

* * *

Men don't get delirious

And the best way to find out nothing can be done about the problem is to invite more than two men to the conference.

Milestone on the path to sportsmanship—

WORCESTER, Mass. — Dorothy T. Harker has won a divorce. She said her husband choked her. "I trumped his ace in a card game," she explained.

"And it's not so much the effects of war," says Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, "as it seems to be the effects of the after effects."

* * *

Revise—

You're young only once too often.

As his rival grew frantic.
An then they slowly kissed again—
Ain't billiard balls romantic?
—BILL WILEY.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Aunt Bella—

There was a rumor going around that you were going to enter the Baby Parade the other day. I watched for you—what happened? —CURIOUS.

Ans.—Plenty, dearie. I had a little argument with the judges about the age limit, and then a couple of sailors convinced me that it would be cheapening to appear in public thataway.

—Aunt (Babe) Bella.

And the only trouble with improved means of communication is that it makes too many people think they have something to communicate.

Little Willie, always clowning,
Was the cause of papa's drowning;
Mother patted Willie's back:
"Sonny, I look swell in black."

* * *

Oh, my eugenic hat
Makes me look like I'd been on a bat!
It starts o'er one eye
And it tilts to the sky—
My quaint little eugenic hat.
—Sonnie.

Another New Show Given at Seaglades

The Seaglades at Hotel Westminster boasts another unusual show for the coming week introduced by Master of Ceremonies Mickie Alpert.

The star of the little revue is Miss Maxine Lewis. She is ably seconded by the Cartons, Miss Mary Lee and the diminutive Paul de Wees. Mickie Alpert's augmented orchestra is conducted by Bernard Tasiole.

New Show Given at Renard's Mayfair

Renard's Mayfair, 54 Broadway, is presenting an entirely new show this week featuring Miss Tamara, former star of "Crazy Quilt." Other stars include Carolyn Nolte, musical comedy favorite, and Irene and Marios.

Friday night is reserved as Debutante Night.

Egyptian Room Is Drawing Big Crowds

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

In preparation for winter West Indies cruises, steamer Evangeline, of Eastern Steamship Co. fleet, is being bottom-scraped and painted at Simpson plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp., East Boston. She went into drydock yesterday after arrival from New York, following her trip to Yorktown with a large number of passengers who attended the sesqui-centennial celebration. During the past summer the Evangeline plied between New York and Yarmouth, N. S.

Medical

X-RAY

Examination consultation and trial treatment absolutely free to all who call before Oct. 25th. The wonderful power of the X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description. No matter what your disease may be, remember, Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfills the above offer.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. N. T. Julian, 117 Harrishof St., Roxbury, Mass., says: "I suffered great distress from stomach and bowel trouble. I had taken all kinds of medicine recommended and had been treated by a physician, but got no permanent relief. A friend told me of Dr. Walsh. Said that she had suffered much as I did and that Dr. Walsh had given her permanent relief. So I had Dr. Walsh treat me. Now I feel so well that I permit the publication of this testimonial in the hope of helping others who suffer as I did."

Laval's Visit

He Should Be Told the Real Truth

On the eve of the arrival in the United States of the Premier of France, there comes from aboard his ship this deeply disquieting report:

"A French demand for American participation in a pact guaranteeing French security, it was stated in high quarters tonight, will be one of the cardinal points of Premier Laval's program for further disarmament."

If this report turns out to be true, then the Premier's mission is foredoomed to failure, and deservedly so.

No such pact stands the ghost of a chance of receiving the approval of the American Senate, even if President Hoover should be so ill-advised as to follow in the footsteps of President Wilson and transmit another French security pact to the Senate.

President Wilson's French security pact, which he brought back from Paris and transmitted to the Senate on July 29, 1919, gave the guarantee of Great Britain and the United States for the protection of France. It was meant to satisfy France for her failure, under the Treaty of Versailles, to get the Rhine boundary.

Duly referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, it died there. It was never reported out. The committee did not even take it up for consideration.

As Senator Lodge of Massachusetts complained afterward:

"It would have been quite useless to do so, even if the committee had favored it, for I do not think there was the slightest chance that the Senate would ever have voted to accept it. There was no desire on the part of Senators of either party at that stage to bind the United States irrevocably to agreements to go to war under certain prescribed conditions."

Since that time the American people have repeatedly reiterated to their head servants at Washington a stern and solemn mandate to keep out of security pacts and all other devices for the involvement of the United States in the broils of the Old World.

If President Hoover does not say as much to Premier Laval, then let the French Premier turn to the Committee on Foreign Relations for the truth.

He will hear it from the members of that committee, beginning with its distinguished chairman—Senator Borah, of Idaho.

"Sallies" Need Your Help

Their Charity Well Directed

Mr. Philip R. Allen, chairman of the Salvation Army's appeal for $150,000, informs us that "THE NEED IS GREATER THAN EVER THIS YEAR."

Indeed it is.

The generous people of Boston, Massachusetts and New England must be prepared to receive extraordinary requests from the charitable societies which administer to the afflicted and unfortunate among us.

It is a matter of all of us giving to the limit which each of us can afford. It is a matter, too, of selecting those organizations whose ministrations reach the widest group of our people most sorely in need of assistance.

The Salvation Army comes to us in its appeal for funds with splendid credentials.

In war time, its brave men and women carried coffee and doughnuts in shell fire to our boys in the front-line trenches.

In peace time, they labor with patience, endurance and simplicity in the lowest reaches of our social structure.

Their benefactions are distributed with kindly, unprejudiced hands among unfortunate men, women and children reached by no other charitable institution. To them, "A man may be down, but never out."

We can trust the Salvation Army.

The dollars, even the pennies, we give to them go where they will do the most good.

Therefore, let us give. Let their call be not in vain. They ask not for themselves, but for others in the name of the Great Humanitarian who mingled with the poor, bound up their wounds and commanded us to watch over them tenderly.

Great Man, Blind Dog

Dr. Samuel W. Stratton was great enough to be Director of the Bureau of Standards and President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He was great enough to be the friend of a blind dog faithfully at his side when death came.

In olden days, the quality of a man was often judged by his kindness, or lack of it, to dumb animals.

There is hardly a better test. It is so difficult for some "brave" men to resist the temptation to vent their spleen, anger or irritation upon a helpless animal, incapable of defending itself.

True gentility, the essence of fine character, treats all the lowly with dignity and kindliness, whether they be human or animals. And the dog repays it with faithful devotion. Hard times don't sour his friendship.

Many Savers, Good Banks

Deposits and depositors made striking increases this year.

Also, the interest paid to them by the banks was no doubt the largest in the history of the State.

Few in New England need to be convinced. They take it for granted. The history of 150 years has justified their confidence.

Throw Open the Portals!

Hours of labor have decreased from fourteen hours a day at the beginning of the Nineteenth Century to eight hours a day at the beginning of the Twentieth Century.

It is time for another reduction in hours. Labor-saving machinery makes a reduction of hours possible, and, in fact, necessary.

There must be co-operation on the part of the working people to make the six-hour day possible in this period of depression. Unnecessary restriction on production must be removed. Hampering, harassing union rules must be modified.

There he is "ON THE SPOT," poor, old Uncle Sam. They called him Shylock and then refused to pay what they owed.

They told him not to build so many ships, they dragged him into the Asiatic muddle, and yet the poor, deluded Ancient says, "I really ought to do something for those boys; I know I can TRUST them."

Here he is trusting them, forgetting that good American slogan, born on July 4, 1776: To trust is to bust; NO TRUST, NO BUST.

Poor, Sam, ingenuous as a weanling walrus, is in the European speakeasy now. There, the League of Nations is the head racketeer and the little fellows yell "AYE" when France says "Allez donc."

What will be the outcome? Since YOU asked it, YOU answer it. Our own opinion is that Uncle Sam will exchange that pocketbook for some valuable information. And he will get the information late. Europe will get the pocketbook in the nick of time.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Restaurant "Walkers"

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—Every restaurant, small and large, cheap and high priced, faces the problem of handing "walkers"—the term for those who stroll out without paying the chit. The loss by such deceptions is in thousands and mounting daily.

In opulent times the remedy is comparatively simple—arrest and prosecution. But with many actually hungry, proprietors are reluctant to act. Especially so when any number eat their fill and when caught confess frankly inability to pay.

One hashery on the Bowery collects immediately food is served. A tea room on Lexington ave. requires patrons to buy luncheon or dinner checks upon entering which are collected by waitresses before serving. Yet the gypping is not confined entirely to modest places.

Indeed it is accomplished the easiest in expensive Mayfair cafes where no rigid watch is maintained. One well dressed fellow nabbed exiting on Fifth ave. confessed he had been lunching for several months in the very best dining rooms free.

"I just walk in, eat and walk out," he said. "Until today no one ever stopped me." However, in many instances, hardships fall on the waiters. They are held strictly accountable for checks not settled.

At one of the big theatrical openings the irrepressible Texas Guinan found her seat directly adjoining Police Commissioner Mulrooney. She bowed and whispered: "This probably won't do much for you socially."

Senator Henry J. Allen, famous Kansas, and Frank Phillips, equally famous Oklahoma oil magnate, began careers as small town barbers. And are proud of it, as they should be. I somehow thought of them today in meeting the rich scion of a middle west junk dealer. "My dad," he was telling a group, "spent most his life collecting antiques."

• • •

Incidently, Frank Phillips is the only white man to be adopted and become a chief of the Osage tribe. His warrior name is Hulah Kihekah (Eagle Chief).

I have been trying to think, while doing today's chore, of at least one person utterly unaffected by trying days through which all have been passing. The nearest to this anomaly is a night elevator man I pass on walks with my dog after midnight. He tilts in a chair in the rear of his building, always calling out some cheery message. Not once have I heard a note of gloom. Even in his last talk, when he told me he had been dismissed, he said: "But times are going to improve and I'll soon have a better job."

O, yes, and Lisle Bell finds a note of cheer in the fact hundreds of ex-truck drivers are now walking the streets.

During an interlude, too, I picked up the phone and became en-rapport with a crossed connection. A softly feminine voice purred: "Naturally I don't expect the things I used to have—. Nor do I expect to starve either. You don't have to come to see me but you are—going to send me a check every month or be smeared all over the tabloids."

The most exciting eavesdropping on the telephone, however, was in a West 72d st. hotel years ago. Shortly before dawn a phone in a bedroom adjoining mine rang. In the stillness the answers of a woman could be heard clearly. "You mean he knows," inquired her excitedly shrill voice. A few moments later a blood-curdling scream, a bustle in the halls and eight floors below a crumpled body on a flagstone court. It developed a philandering wife had been warned by a sister-in-law that her husband had traced her to this hotel. And was outside with private detectives.

From a news item: "One window of pipes and cigarette holders had burned out and the other with cigarette lighters on fire was blazing when firemen arrived."

Truth shaming fiction again.

As Noble Lenders

By Garet Garrett

(ARTICLE THREE)

(Reprinted from the Saturday Evening Post of October 17, 1931, by permission of the editors.)

In the first two articles, Mr. Garrett outlined how American credit had twice saved Germany—once for herself and once for the sake of Europe—and had also come to the rescue of the Bank of England—all in less than three months and at a cost to America of $1,250,000,000.

He makes it clear that the sole aim of Germany is to be rid of reparations, the sole aim of the Allies is to be rid of their debts to the United States Treasury.

As lenders, do we know what we are about? Lending is with motive. Where Europe is concerned, our motive is extremely complex—much more than we ourselves realize. There is a kind of obsession in it that has nothing to do with gain.

Beyond all considerations of an economic or financial character, there is pressing upon us all the time that sense of obligation to SAVE EUROPE.

It seized us deeply during the war. It carried us into the war. We were going to save Europe from Germany, the German people from the Hohenzollerns, little nations from big ones, all the people of Europe from the curse of war forever. There were other motives, to be sure. We had money on the side of the Allies, though by such measures as we now use it was very little.

Our sympathies went to the Allies. We hated the way Germans made war. Some of us may have been a little afraid of a German Europe. Allied propaganda to get us in had its great effect.

Yet for all this we should never have gone in without the emotional thought that made a crusade of it. A war to end war, Where? In Europe. A war to make the world safe for democracy. Where was democracy supposed to be in danger? In Europe. A war to liberate oppressed nationalities.

Where? In Europe. Not a war against the Germans—we said we had no quarrel with the German people—but a war to deliver them from the tyranny of their own war lords.

The Allies did not care what our reasons were. We could be as romantic as we liked, only so we came in on their side; for unless we did, the war was lost. They were fighting to beat Germany, and with American assistance they did beat her.

Our own exertions in the war cost us $25,000,000,000. During the period of our participation we loaned, besides, more than $7,000,000,000 out of the United States Treasury to the Allies.

After the armistice we loaned them some $2,500,000,000 more out of the Treasury.

Lending to Europe out of the United States Treasury ended with the post-armistice loans. Counting our own direct war expenditures, the war loans, the post-armistice loans, and then the private lending since, Europe has cost us more than $40,000,000,000 in less than fifteen years.

As to this private debt, representing $5,000,000,000 of American credit poured into Europe during the last eight years, it is permitted to ask: What have we gained thereby?

Definitely, in the first place, not the friendship or good-will of Europe. On the contrary, we have raised against ourselves in Europe an ugly debtor mentality. . . .

American loans to Germany have enabled her to pay reparations. Out of reparations from Germany the others have made their annual war-debt payments to the American Government. Anything we have yet got back from Europe was our own money, the worse for wear, and very little of that. . . .

In less than ten years international finance has accomplished a fact the idea of which had been rejected by America for a century and a half—namely, the fact of foreign entanglement.

And where the entanglement, if any, had been expected at worst to be the affair of finance, it begins suddenly to present moral and political aspects of a very grave character. For example, in putting over the first Hoover debt-holiday plan, which was to relieve all nations of war-debt payments for a year, and then the second plan, which was to impound American credit in Germany, we assumed definite moral responsibilities.

Already Europe is asking: "What will you do when these measures expire?"

It is saying: "The terrible suspense of not knowing what you will do is preventing any economic recovery in Europe. Do it now." . . .

And what a colossal subtlety it all turns out to be! Let the once-allied nations of Europe forgive German reparations; let the United States forgive them their war debts. To talk of wiping out the war debt owing by Europe to the United States Treasury with a grand American gesture is so much fine doggerel. It cannot be wiped out. If Europe does not pay it, the American Government will have to pay it. To whom? To the holders of Liberty Bonds. They loaned the money to the American Government and the American Government loaned it to Europe.

Suppose there was no more American credit! Suppose the mighty well of it did go dry. Then what would Europe do? Would she sink in a sea of despair? No. Would she starve? No; for if need be she is quite self-sustaining, even in food. Would she go Bolshevik? If so it pleased her, yes. But what would really happen? Only this—that she would be obliged to live within her means.

She has been increasing her means. There is no doubt of that. Anyone who knew Europe before the war and knows it now will not hesitate to say that in all the principal countries people are better clothed, better fed, better housed than ever before. . . .

What has American credit done for Europe? It has enabled her to receive reparations from Germany and to make annual payments to the United States Treasury on her war debts. It has greatly mitigated the distress of her unemployment.

But has it solved one of Europe's real problems? Not one. It has enabled her only to postpone them. It has failed to keep her solvent. It has created in her a habit of dependence on foreign credit and the delusion that credit itself may be the solution of anything. So every prodigal debtor thinks—if only there was no end of credit there need be no problems.

She has not solved the first problem of all, which is how to live at peace with herself. What an American sees in Europe is still as it always was. Her weapons are better than her tools. With us it is exactly the reverse.

Our tools are better than our weapons. And that is one reason why we have anything to lend.

Europe's other real problems are not here alone. They are such as now bewilder the whole machine world. The aching symbol of them is the scourge of unemployment in an earth-wide scheme of potential surplus.

Well, we have these same problems, too. We have unemployment as a menace. If there is any power in credit to move solutions, then how strange that we should think so much more of trying it upon Europe than of exerting it upon ourselves!
